

ALABAMA VOYERS SUSTAIN ALL DRY STATUTES; BEER AND WINE LEGALIZATION PLAN DEFEATED

SWITCH IN VOTES EXPECTED TO PASS WORK RELIEF BILL

Backers of Labor Amendment Effort To Get an Agreement on Substitute Proposal.

SOLONS MAY CONFER WITH F. D. R. TODAY

Senator Robinson, Party Leader, Declares He Expects To Have Tangle Straightened Out Soon.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)— Heretofore pessimistic democratic leaders today grew optimistic over the possibility of unsnarling the controver between the senate and White House that has pinnioned the $4,880, 000,000 work-relief bill.

They received reports, apparently authentic, that at least two and probably more of the 21 democrats who supported the McCarran prevailing amendment would switch back and vote with the administration adherents.

Talk of a compromise on the issue grew and a small group of backers of the labor amendment conferred twice in an effort to get an agreement on a substitute proposal. This was an other development that put administration leaders in a better humor.

Conference Seen.
Nevertheless, the democratic leaders were determined to put the issue up to President Roosevelt, when he returns from Hyde Park tomorrow. They expect Mr. Roosevelt to call a conference sometime tomorrow for a full discussion on the matter. They want to determine his exact views on it and what he will accept in the way of a compromise.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, said in an interview today that he hoped to have the tangle straightened out within a few days.
He indicated another test would be had on the work-relief amendment, which Senator Glass, democrat, Colorado, would adopt, result in a presidential veto of the entire measure. The senate nevertheless voted it in and the bill went back to committee.

Claiming there had been "no break in the line," Senator McCarran, democrat, Nevada, author of the amendment, asserted today that when the senate appropriated the bill, he would again to consider the measure he would demand open and extensive hearings on the administration's public works program.

Real Objective.
"We want to find out the real objectives of the program," McCarran said, "regarding that he and the American Federation of Labor would considerance "no compromise."

Nevertheless, he was at an early conference called by Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, and attended by Senators Costigan, democrat, Colorado, and La Follette, progressive, Wisconsin, at which compromise proposals were discussed. He did not, however, attend a later conference.

A proposal to provide that all the work under the bill be let by contract in order that the McCarran bill would pay the wage scales provided under NRA codes was discussed. However, no agreement was reached. McCarran

"Ideal Business Girl" Picked by Chicagoans

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(UP)— Five hundred Chicago businessmen described the ideal "business girl" today for the West Area Business and Professional Women's Club.
The men want 'em like this:
1. About 26 years old (34 per cent

RED SEA NATIVES JOIN ITALY'S ARMY AGAINST ETHIOPIA

Thousands Reported En-

Two More Troop Ships Leave Rome.

ROME, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Thousands of natives on both sides of the Red sea were reported enlisting under Italy's flag in east Africa today for possible service against Ethiopia.

Meanwhile, two other Italian ships, the Arabia and the Leonardo Da Vinci, sailed with their quota of troops and war materials for east Africa further to swell the nation's war contin-gent in Eritrea and Italian Somaliland.

At the same time Emperor Haile Selassie, of Ethiopia, through his charge d'affaires in Rome, denied Ethiopia intends to "touch a stone" belonging to Italy's African colonies and asked withdrawal of the reinforcements sent there.

This proclamation, issued to the British Freighter, Crew Believed Lost

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The fate of the British freighter Blairgowrie, disabled by a howling mid-Atlantic gale, was a mystery today as the liner Europe, which was hunting for her,
was in vain through mountainous seas.
The failure of any of the three ships which sped to the craft's SOS to report they had reached the freighter gave rise to apprehension that the Blairgowrie may have foundered, carrying its crew of 26 to their deaths.

The Europe, the American liner and the S. S. Rotterdam, a Dutch land vessel, all rushed to the position given in the Blairgowrie's distress message, but found no trace of the

NRA'S SECTION 7-A IS RULED ILLEGAL IN WEIRTON CASE

Government Also Given Setback When Kentucky Operators Win Writ Against Coal Code.

By the Associated Press.

The national industrial recovery act suffered two setbacks Wednesday in decisions by United States district judges.

Judge John P. Nields at Wilmington, Del., held that Section 7-A of the NIRA is "unconstitutional and void" as applied to the Weirton Steel Company and denied the government's plea for an injunction to restrain the West Virginia company from dealing collectively with its employees through the so-called company union. He held the union is adequate under the act.

Reaffirming his previous conclusion that the NIRA is unconstitutional as applied to coal mining, Federal Judge Charles Dawson, of Louisville, granted 35 western Kentucky coal operators a permanent writ preventing the government from enforcing the bituminous coal code. He held coal mining is an intra-state business and beyond the regulatory power of congress.

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 27.—A history making federal court decision today established the legality of the Weirton Steel Company's employee representation plan and held that Section 7-A, heart of the national industrial recovery act, is unconstitutional.
The company because it is not engaged in interstate commerce in its relations to its employees.

Judge John P. Nields wrote the decision, holding that the plan of employee representation—a so-called company union—in effect among the employees of the defendant, affords a swift and effective organization of the employees for collective bargaining through representatives of their own choosing.

The government's suit, regarded as a major test of the act's labor provisions, was dismissed, and the plea for an injunction to restrain the company from dealing with the employees through the medium of the company plan was denied.

DAUGHTER LINKED IN MELLON DEALS

Stocks Bought by Mrs.
Bruce's Company Established Loss, Says U. S.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 27.—(AP)— Revealing the personal concern of Andrew W. Mellon's daughter bought stock in a transaction upon which he claimed a loss of $683,537.50 in his 1931 income tax return, the government introduced today the tax appeals board.

The evidence was taken from the books of the concern, known as the Ascatol Company and those of A. W.
Mellon, by his confidential secretary,
Howard M. Johnson.

The government charges Ascatol actually was controlled by Mellon and his family and other family-owned companies at his convenience to dodge taxes. The internal revenue bureau seeks $3,089,000 additional taxes while Mellon is asking a $129,000 rebate on the $647,000 he paid in 1931.
Johnson testified that Ascatol was organized in 1930 with Mrs. Ailsa Mellon Bruce depositing securities valued at about $7,000,000 and later adding approximately that much more.
The funds were obtained from gifts made by her father, including a $1,000,000 wedding present of 10,000 shares of Aluminum Company of America preferred stock, Johnson showed.

Loan Questioned.
While tracing sales and purchases of Ascatol, F. R. Shearer, expert government accountant who relieved Robert H. Jackson as cross-examiner, asked about the purchase of 500 shares of Commercial National Bank & Trust Company of New York stock.
Johnson, the witness, said Mrs.
Bruce borrowed $150,000 from her father on February 16, 1931, to buy the stock. Shearer showed that the loan had been paid to David K. E. Bruce, Ailsa's husband, and that at the time chairman of the Ascatol board of directors.
He also got from the books evidence that Mellon's account showed the money was loaned to Ascatol, but that Ascatol's books did not show record of the loan from Mellon until the next December.

Apparently trying by inference to show Mellon actually was owner of the bank stocks, Shearer brought out the loan had been made without any collateral or interest.

Mellon was prohibited under an interpretation of the law by the solicitor-general from engaging in trade or commerce, or owning bank stock.

"Losses" Recited.
At this point, the answers of the usually amiable, grey-haired Johnson were clipped sharper. It was near the end of his sixth day in the witness stand.

'Framed' by Mate, Drugged, Mrs. Gould Tells High Court

Here are the principals in the bizarre $500,000 damage suit now being heard by the supreme court. Mrs. Wilma Gould, right, charges that she was drugged the night her husband and private detectives broke into a hotel room and found her in bed, with the half-dressed "Prince
bathroom.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The romantic ways of his bogus highness,
"Prince Michael Romanoff," found their way again today to court—this time of law.

Instead of the gay lover and man-about-town the "prince" so likes to represent, he heard himself castigated as the gay deceiver who "doped" his fair companion's drink so her husband could obtain divorce evidence.

All day long, in supreme court, Mrs. Wilma E. Gould lashed at the "prince" and said he was the hireling of her husband, Edward Gould, and his family.

11 PCT. FOOD COST HIKE IS PREDICTED SENATE AGREEMENT TO AMENDMENT, TALMADGE'S SIGNATURE NOW NEEDED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—
An increase of 11 per cent in the cost of food during the first half of 1935 compared with the final six months of 1934 was predicted today by Secretary Wallace.

The prediction of a study completed today by Louis H. Bean, economic advisor to the AAA, Wallace told newspersons that an increase of 12 per cent would probably be noted during the latter half of 1935 compared with the same period in 1934. This would be only an additional 1 per cent increase over the first half of the year.

"Practically all of these increases will be in meat prices," Wallace explained, adding that meats would probably increase by 22 per cent during the first half of the year compared with the last half of 1934.

The secretary said, however, that despite these increases foods still would form the lowest-cost goods in the general living cost group and probably would remain in that category through 1935.

Dr. Mordcaei Ezekiel, economic advisor to Wallace, interrupted with the observation that most of the increases in food costs were due to the drought rather than to AAA reduction programs.

Wallace replied:
"I think the AAA had something to do with it."
The secretary declared that even with the increase predicted, food costs would still be below the averages of 1930 but would be higher than those in 1932, the lowest point reached in recent years.

The prediction of an 11 per cent increase did not take into consideration another year of drought and generally unfavorable weather, which would further increase prices of farm products.

Secretary Wallace's statement was

City Held in Winter's Grip; Drop to 15 Forecast Today

An Atlanta woman, Miss Lizzie Spray-berry, 63, of 165 Mills street, who was found frozen to death near her home.
She had apparently wandered from the house in search of aid and fallen between two houses a short distance away. The body was found Wednesday morning.

Man Frozen at Macon.
The second death as a result of ex-posure occurred in Macon, where a newspaper route carrier was found frozen to death.

In addition, a man identified by a card in his purse as O. W. Wilson, of 114 South East Point avenue, East Point, was found unconscious and in a critical condition as a result of exposure to the cold under the For-tish Street viaduct at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning. He was removed to Grady hospital, where an examination revealed no marks beyond a slight abrasion on the face.

Atlanta experienced intermittent snow flurries Wednesday morning and night suffering among families on the reported. Numerous homeless persons found shelter both Tuesday and Wed-

ANTI-NARCOTIC ACT PASSED BY HOUSE, SENT TO GOVERNOR

Completing enactment of the measure, the house of representatives Wednesday passed the state anti-narcotics bill and sent it to the governor for his signature. The measure, designed to make the Harrison federal anti-parcotic act the law of the state, is even stronger than the federal law, inasmuch as it outlaws all forms of habit-forming drugs, including marijuana, and makes violation a felony punishable by imprisonment up to 10 years.

The house passed a number of other important measures during the day but defeated the Barrett bill to permit applications for divorce after only 60 days' residence in the state instead of the 12 months' residence as now required. The vote on the bill was 79 to 78. It was defeated because it failed to get the required 103 votes, a majority of the whole house. Representative Barrett, of Richmond, countrily, the author, gave notice that he will ask reconsideration this morning when a fuller attendance of the house is anticipated.

Meanwhile, the senate tabled two measures sponsored by Solicitor-General John A. Boykin designed to put teeth in the criminal laws. The measures were tabled after they were strongly opposed by Senator W. O.
Cooper, of Macon, and other lawyers in the upper branch of the assembly.

Passage of the anti-narcotics bill in the house was voted 124 to 5 after Representative William B. Hartsfield had spoken in its behalf and said that it was a great portion of Georgia's crime could be attributed to drugs against which there are no present laws in the state.

Hartsfield pointed out that other states of the south have passed the narcotic law and it has brought about reductions in crime.
Representative Hartsfield, Atlanta, said the measure already has been passed by the senate and will be sent to the governor today. Inasmuch as the governor at a conference with federal officials before the start of the current session announced his approval of the bill and it has not been mate-

BOYKIN AIDS PROBE OF 'RACKET' HEADS

List of Lottery, Number Game Operators Given
Page by Solicitor.

The state of Georgia joined forces with the federal government Wednesday in tracking down Atlanta racketeers who have failed to pay income taxes, when a list of more than 20 lottery and number game operators was supplied W. E. Page, collector of internal revenue, by the office of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin.

The internal revenue department is checking its lists to determine whether Atlanta racketeers and bootleggers filed income tax returns in 1934 and in preceding years. It is likewise ascertaining whether any of those racketeers who did file returns gave truthful information as to their incomes.

Workers in the office of Mr. Page began checking through income tax records yesterday on a partial list of alleged gamblers, bootleggers and number game operators. This list was augmented Wednesday by an additional list supplied by the solicitor-general's office.

Offenders Must Appear.
If the checkup now in progress reveals that the city's racketeers have failed to file returns or if it indicates that those who did pay taxes concealed their true incomes, the offenders will be requested to appear at the internal revenue offices with their records.

The offenders will be questioned by Mr. Page, and if it is evident that intention existed to defraud the government, the United States attorney will be asked to present the cases to the federal grand jury.

Violators of the income tax law face prison sentences of five years and fines of $5,000 for each year an offense is committed, according to the internal revenue collector.

"I now have in my possession a list of Atlanta's racketeers as supplied me by the solicitor-general's office," Mr. Page announced Wednesday.
"There are some duplications with another list in my possession, but in all I would say that there are at least 30 cases on which we will check."

"While it is not exactly the duty of the internal revenue department to rid Atlanta of its racketeers, yet if we find that they have been violating the law by failing to file returns or by misrepresenting their incomes, we will most assuredly push the cases to the limit."
"It is my intention to summon every suspected violator to this office.
We will require them to submit their records, and then if there is the slightest possibility that a deliberate attempt has been made to defraud the government, the department of jus-

REPEAL AND BEER HEARING PLANNED BY SENATE GROUP

Measure Referred to Temperance Committee of Upper Branch Following Passage by House

Interest in the state prohibition referendum and the beer legalization bill was focused on the senate Wednesday as these measures, already adopted by the house, were given their first readings in the upper branch of the assembly and referred to the temperance committee, headed by Senator John McGehee, of Talbot-ton.

Senator McGehee said the committee would probably have a meeting Friday or Monday to fix the time for a public hearing on the measures, which he has announced. Meanwhile the repeal referendum proposal is being printed and copies of it will be furnished the entire membership of the senate.

A keen interest was shown by members of the general assembly in the outcome of the prohibition referendum in Alabama Tuesday.

Senator David Atkinson, of Savannah, vice chairman of the temperance committee and considered the wet leader of the repeal branch of the assembly, said he believed the Alabama vote would aid the repeal cause in Georgia.

"I ought to show the drys that if they are as strong in Georgia as they say they are they should submit the issue to the voters which is all the Parker-Sheriff-Bargeon bill passed by the house does," Senator Atkinson said. "While I am considered a wet I am most certainly willing to abide by the majority. That is what the folks in Alabama are going to do and that is what we in Georgia are going to do. But we think there is enough divided opinion in this state to warrant submission of the entire matter.
If it is submitted I will be satisfied
if they are as strong in Georgia as they say they are they should submit
the issue to the voters which is all the Parker-Sheriff-Bargeon bill passed by the house does."

A number of senators said Wednesday they will seek to lower the tax on beer fixed in the Culpepper bill passed by the house. As approved by the lower body the bill fixes the state tax at $2.50 on each 31-gallon barrel. Those advocating the reduction feel the $2.50 per barrel tax will mean the passing of the nickel stein of the brew.

Post's Plane Reveals Sabotage Attempt

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—(UP)— An attempt to sabotage the strategic sphere plane of Wiley Post, noted around-the-world flyer, and possibly send him to his death during his projected record hop to New York last week was revealed tonight.

Palmer Nicholls, president of the Pacific Air Motive Corporation, which handles repairs on the Winnie Mae, said a "foreign saboteur" was placed in the intake manifolds of the plane prior to Post's take-off.

The substance, suggested as possible enemy dust, clogged the oil line and forced Post to descend at Murco Dry Lake, Cal., 200 miles from Los Angeles.

Majority of Counties Favoring Repeal Two Years Ago Reverse Position on Issue.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 27.—
(AP)—Alabama, one of the only two states in the nation retaining their rigid prohibition laws, tonight in a popular vote had sustained dry statutes for the first time in the history of the state.

Only Georgia, where a bill to submit liquor control to the voters now is pending in the state legislature today retains prohibition laws that ante-date repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

With surprising consistency counties that less than two years ago voted for repeal of the eighteenth amendment returned dry majorities today to whittle down an early modification lead and then force steadily to the front.

Sanford Mullins, leader of Alabama's repeal campaign, tonight conceded victory to prohibition forces in yesterday's referendum but declared that Jefferson, Mobile and Montgomery counties "should have some relief."

The vote on three questions submitted to the electorate yesterday on the repeal of the 18th amendment, 1,887 of 2,156 ballot boxes in the state gave the following results, subject to revision on official canvasses:

1. For modification of existing dry statutes, 89,133, and against 94,775.
2. For legalization of beer and wine, 80,328, and against 93,872.
3. For legalization of hard liquor,
87,903, and against 95,055.

Vote Has No Legal Standing.
While the referendum has no legal standing, it would have served as a mandate to the legislature which recognizes the state's right to shape its own course accordingly.

Already there was talk going the rounds that since the three most popular counties, Montgomery, Mobile and

MONCRIEF Air CONDITIONING

This charming brick home of Mr. C. R. Roberts, Woodward Way, designed by Will Griffin, architect, is but one of the hundreds of Atlanta Homes that enjoy the comfort, health and cleanliness of Moncrief Air-Conditioning. This installation uses natural gas for fuel.

With this modern system this beautiful home is comfortable winter and summer. The system is moisture, cleaned and filtered of dust, dirt and bacteria. Rugs, draperies and furnishings are free from the usual dust accumulation and cleaning and redecorating costs are materially reduced. Moncrief Air-Conditioning System protects the health of the family by catching and destroying bacteria in the air filters.

Investigate this modern system today—it can be economically installed in either a new home or one already built, and can use coal, oil or gas for fuel.

Moncrief also installs furnaces, weather-stripping, rock wool attic insulation, ventilating and humidification systems and refrigeration for home cooling.

McFARLANE DEMANDS M'CRACKEN RESIGN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Immediate resignation of William P. McCracken, former assistant secretary of commerce, from the national advisory committee on aeronautics, and failing that, start of impeachment proceedings, was demanded in a resolution introduced in the house today by Representative W. D. MacFarlane, democrat, Texas.

McCracken now is in the District of Columbia jail serving 10 days for contempt of the senate.

had held that the Weirton business is interstate.

The suggestion that recurrent times suspend constitutional limitations or cause manufacturing operations to so affect interstate commerce as to subject them to regulation by the congress," Judge Nields said, "borders on the fantastic and merits no serious consideration."

How at Labor.

Judge Nields' decision was a blow at the contention of organized labor that the so-called company union is a tool of industrial management to circumvent the rights of workers to organize and bargain collectively.

While government spokesmen predicted the ruling would be appealed, Weirton officials jubilantly hailed it. Ernest T. Weil, chairman of the board of the company, termed the decision a "complete vindication of our constant position that we have never in any way influenced or dominated our employees in the operation of their employee representation plan; that at all times they have had complete freedom of action and have conducted their organization according to their own ideas."

"It also decides," he said, "the legality of the employee representation and its outstanding value to employees in the matter of collective bargaining with their employers."

Department of justice officials, Francis Biddle, chairman of the national labor relations board, and Chairman Doughton, democrat, North Carolina, of the house ways and means committee, which handled the NIRA, predicted an appeal will be taken. Doughton said, "If there is any question of constitutionality, we can take care of it shortly."

Judge Nields, citing four supreme court decisions, upheld the company's contention that it is not engaged in interstate commerce with its employees, and that any construction applying Section 7-A to its activities would make the section unconstitutional.

"The relations between defendant and its employees do not affect interstate commerce," said the decision.

"Manufacture is a co-operative enterprise. Production of goods and services, with consequent wages, salaries and dividends, depends upon a sympathetic co-operation of management and workmen. A relation acceptable and satisfactory to both workmen and management is an essential feature of the enterprise. If satisfactory the court will not disturb it."

"It is said this relation involves the problem of the economic balance of the power of labor against the power of capital. The theory of a balance of power, or of balancing opposing powers, is based upon mutual interest, understanding and good will."

"This modern theory is embodied in the Weirton plan of employee organization."

Lawful Instrument.

The court found that by "clear preponderance of evidence," the so-called company union of the defendant "is a lawful instrument for collective bargaining under the act and is free of domination and control by the management."

Judge Nields said that the National Steel Corporation, which controls the Weirton company "is not the defendant in this suit."

"It is true that part of the business of that corporation is interstate commerce," the decision contended. "Weirton Steel Company is the sole defendant in this suit. Its business is the manufacture of iron and steel products. Defendant is not engaged in interstate commerce save to a negligible extent. In its relations to its employees as dealt with in Section 7-A it is not engaged in interstate commerce."

"Those relations are incident to manufacture. The fact that defendant is a wholly owned subsidiary of National Steel Corporation can not change the character of defendant's business from that of manufacture to commerce."

"Therefore in considering the question of the constitutionality of Section 7-A the business and corporate structure of the National Steel Corporation is immaterial."

The decision said the enactment of the section "either is authorized by the commerce clause of the constitution or it is unauthorized and therefore void."

It cited the case of Kidd vs. Pearson, involving an Iowa statute in which the United States supreme court said "manufacture is transformation of the fashioning of raw materials into a form for use. The functions of commerce are different."

Judge Nields held with the supreme court that merely because manufacture contemplates an interstate or foreign market it does not become interstate commerce.

"The very things emphatically condemned by the supreme court is what has been attempted by means of Section 7-A of the recovery act and the codes approved thereunder," said the opinion.

Referring to Hammer vs. Dagenhart, involving the manufacture of goods by child labor in North Carolina, Judge Nields said "this is a clear and emphatic statement that the commerce clause can not be construed so as to bring within the regulatory power of the federal government the manufacture of goods intended for shipment in interstate commerce, and a fortiori, the entire economic life of the nation."

High Court Rulings Cited.

The decision said supreme court rulings demonstrated that "the constitution did not give to congress the power to regulate manufacture. The authority of these cases of the supreme court stands and must continue to stand until the constitution is amended. Their application to the business of defendant is quite certain."

In this respect Judge Nields said: "If defendant's manufacturing plants and manufacturing operations are to be regarded as instruments for the interstate movement of goods, it follows that practically all of the manufacturing industry of the United States would be brought within the control of the federal government."

"Such result has received the unqualified condemnation of the supreme court."

The court ruled that the election of collective bargaining representatives at the Weirton plants in December, 1933, was legal and absolved the company management of the government's charge that it violated an agreement with the national labor board, which was to supervise the election.

The election followed a strike which was called by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. The court said "it should be borne in mind that the labor board had no authority to conduct an election. Its position was that of a mere volunteer acting as a group of individuals and not as a lawfully constituted authority."

Intelligent Railroad Regulation Needed, Aid to Co-ordinator Tells Freight Bureau

Principal figures at the 33d annual dinner and meeting of the Atlanta Freight Bureau held Wednesday night at the Athletic Club. Left to right, H. S. Collinsworth, chairman of the bureau, who acted as toastmaster, Leslie Craven, counsel to the federal co-ordinator of transportation at Washington, D. C., principal speaker, and John M. Cooper, chairman of the executive committee of the bureau. Staff photo by Kenneth Rogers.

Unless intelligent regulation of the many problems that now beset the railroads of the country is devised, an era of government ownership is inevitable in the near future, according to Leslie Craven, counsel to the federal co-ordinator of transportation at Washington, who addressed the Atlanta Freight Bureau at its 33d annual dinner held Wednesday night at the athletic club.

H. S. Collinsworth, chairman of the bureau, presided, while John M. Cooper, chairman of the executive committee, introduced Mr. Craven. Reports were made by the treasurer, L. A. Hirschberg, showing that the bureau closed the year with a balance to its credit, and by E. J. Hart, secretary, who introduced the report of the committee on the railroad crisis.

The railroad crisis is the depression but to the sharp competition of trucks, pipe lines and water carriers.

"We have a race," he said, "between intelligence and government ownership and I think we should bet on intelligence."

The railroad crisis is the depression but to the sharp competition of trucks, pipe lines and water carriers.

"There are now 55 steam railroads in bankruptcy, aggregating about 43,000 miles of road," he said. "The earnings are on the decline, because the railroads have agreed to restore the full 10 per cent wage cut before April 1, 1935, increasing operating expenses $150,000,000; the NRA codes have added $137,000,000 in the increased cost of materials and supplies; and the railroad pension act, if it becomes effective, will add another $60,000,000 expense. This will mean more bankruptcies."

"Somebody has said that 'civilization is always a race between intelligence and catastrophe.' I would say that with the railroads we have a race between intelligence, and, if not catastrophe, then with government ownership. This is a race where I think we should bet on intelligence. The emergency transportation act intends to make intelligence win. By that I mean it has set up a federal co-ordinator whose business it is to submit to congress a disinterested, intelligent solution of the problem."

"This is a new thing in railroad legislation, which heretofore has always been hammered out before the congressional committees by people who had an axe to grind. The success or failure of the new project will depend upon whether those who have axes to grind will succeed in breaking up the co-ordinator's program, which has been developed with an attitude of disinterest. It is, of course, obvious that if the program is to be designed for the common good and the good of the public, it has got to reflect the disinterested intelligence of one who is not looking at the problem from the standpoint of any special interest. It cannot be arranged to be prejudicial to capital, or designed to be primarily favorable to labor, or fixed so that it will put the truck at a disadvantage with the railroads, or arranged to make the shippers pay a bill which they should not bear or favor the shippers of one region as against those of another."

"No Unanimity on Program."

"Now, people will differ as to whether any program is the right program; but no one thus far has charged an intelligent and impartial treatment of the situation. Those who do not like it are those who want to get special treatment at the pie counter."

"Without attempting detail, the program contemplates a co-ordinated regulation of all transportation, designed to give equal protection of the law to the shipper, the carrier, the motor carrier and their water and motor competitors with the purpose of eliminating out-thrust competition which never does anybody any good, and at the same time insuring the public the right sort of service by the right rates. The program further contemplates the promotion of right co-ordinative practices among the carriers, such as eliminating some of the useless competition and duplication of facilities, but under a dismissal wage settlement designed to give adequate protection to labor."

"The program further contemplates the overhauling and reorganization of the interstate commerce commission, and the vesting in it of authority over the water carriers and the trucks. The program further contemplates the reorganization of insolvent railroads and the elimination of those practices in the present law which make it possible for stubborn minorities to insist upon being bought out at their own price."

"Such a program ought to have the support of the public. If we cannot get an intelligent regulation of those problems, it is, I think, generally agreed that government ownership is the next step. This would not mean a whole succession of brand-new problems, so far as I know, few men have the courage to face."

said he would accept a compromise only if it retained the "spirit" of his amendment, and added "either we are going to have a wage amendment or we are not."

Wagner said, however, the results of the conference would be conveyed to the party leaders.

Senator Glass, chairman of the appropriations committee to which the bill was referred 1st week after the senate adopted the McCarran amendment, today said he would continue to await the president's views on the measure. No plans have been made to consider the bill as yet, he said.

Direct Relief.

Senator Adams, democrat, Colorado, said there was considerable sentiment in the senate for continuation of the present direct relief system and said he would force a vote on his amendment to cut the $4,880,000,000 to $1,880,000,000.

The Adams proposition, along with one to separate the $880,000,000 for direct relief from the $4,000,000,000 public works section, are to be submitted to Mr. Roosevelt.

Another proposition is to have the senate committee report the bill without the McCarran amendment for another test in the senate in view of the indicated increase in administration support.

A compromise proposal to be considered would provide a substitute to permit the president to increase wages for relief workers in event private wages were being slashed as a result of lower pay from the government. The administration planned to pay around a $50 a month maximum to the 3,500,000 it hopes to remove from the relief roll.

Fifth Member Quits Mendieta's Cabinet

HAVANA, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Police armed with rifles today blocked thousands of school teachers trying to collect their salaries ahead of time as the fifth member of President Carlos Mendieta's cabinet resigned in the face of Cuba's spreading school strike. The teachers, acting on the advice of strike leaders, marched en masse to the office of the board of education to demand their February pay.

Rogelio Pina, Mendieta's secretary of labor, was the newest minister to desert the government. His resignation tonight was being considered by the patched-up cabinet, from which four other secretaries previously had paraded.

British Officer Found Guilty Of Negligence in Ship Crash

PORTSMOUTH, England, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Captain H. R. Sawbridge, of H. M. S. Renown, was stripped of his ace command today by a court-martial which found him guilty of hazarding his ship and H. M. S. Hood during recent maneuvers off Spain.

Nine naval officers composing the court were unanimous in their verdict that the veteran British officer failed to take effective action to prevent a collision of the great battle cruisers January 23.

Captain Sawbridge was put on half pay by the verdict, which naval officers said was a rare one against captains in recent naval history.

There is no appeal from the court-martial, but the papers will be considered as a routine matter by the lords of the admiralty, who alone have the power, if they so desire, to alter the decision.

It was expected that the papers will not be forwarded to London until after the final court-martial growing out of the collision, which will be held tomorrow.

Rear Admiral Bailey was the final prosecuting witness today in the Sawbridge hearing.

Captain Sawbridge is expected to be given a temporary technical command of H. M. S. Victory, Nelson's old flagship, on which the hero met his death at Trafalgar. The Victory now is a museum ship in Portsmouth dockyard.

This technical command will permit Sawbridge to give evidence in the trial of Captain Tower. No officer on half pay in the navy is permitted to give evidence.

'FRAMED,' DRUGGED, SAYS MRS. GOULD

February 2, 1931—but several days after he met me. Almost every day he invited me to the theater or to dinner.

Mrs. Gould said she was simply fascinated from such attention from a "member" of the old Russian imperial family—it's only been in recent years that Romanoff's mask has been stripped from him.

Then came the evening of February 10. They were at dinner. Mrs. Gould felt dizzy after drinking some wine. The "prince," she charged, took her to an apartment he rented.

"I was awakened by a terrific noise. I started to sit up. I found myself lying on my left side covered with a sheet in a bed," the attractive Mrs. Gould said.

"Romanoff jumped up and ran into the bathroom." The terrific noise was the breaking down of the door by the husband. A detective was with him.

"Is this your wife?" the detective asked.

"Yes," Gould said.

Just as they were leaving, the "prince" rushed out of the bathroom. "What do you mean, disturbing a man in his private apartment?" he shouted.

Motorists also were caught napping by the cold wave, and garage operators of the city did a thriving business in repairing radiators ruined by freezing.

Winter made its assault along the southeast. New York, Pennsylvania and other eastern states were blanketed by snow, while nine inches of snow fell in the panhandle of West Virginia.

Low temperatures swept into most sections of the south Tuesday night and continued to hold sway Wednesday and Wednesday night. Louisville, Ky., and Asheville, N. C., reported readings of 14 degrees; Memphis and Birmingham, 20 degrees; Vicksburg, Miss., Shreveport, La. and Macon, Ga., 24 degrees; Raleigh, N. C., and Pensacola, Fla., 26; New Orleans, 32; and Tampa, Fla., 45 degrees.

Cold Abating in North.

Meanwhile the cold wave was abating in the middle western states and the north. Relief was seen for Atlanta and Georgia today. The weather here will be clear and a maximum reading of at least 40 degrees is probable, Mr. Mindling said.

It was the first time this winter that Atlanta has experienced more than 24 hours of sub-freezing temperatures, according to the weather bureau. At midnight Tuesday night the mercury stood at 25 degrees, and the highest Wednesday was only 27 degrees. The low temperature Wednesday morning was 20 degrees, recorded from 4 until 8 o'clock.

DIRECT RELIEF URGED FOR COTTON GROWERS

Plan Termed More Equitable Than Processing Tax on Staple.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—

Representative Martin, republican, Massachusetts, said in the house today direct relief to the southern cotton grower would cause less economic distress than the agricultural processing tax on cotton.

The processing tax, he said, placed a heavy burden on the cotton textile industry. He charged the program for reducing cotton production endangered our cotton markets abroad. He said it might result in irreparable injury, for that reason, to future prospects of the south.

"I believe it would be infinitely better," he said, "for the farmer, the textile industry, the consumer and the people generally, if we went directly to the United States treasury and gave the farmer a contribution of $125,000,000. If this is a real relief measure, the cost should be borne by all the people, and not by a single industry, which itself is in a life and death struggle."

"I do not believe the tax will be beneficial ultimately to the cotton farmer in the south. We are never going to solve his difficulties by paying a doler for not raising cotton."

Warning the cotton growing regions that reduction of production is endangering the American cotton export trade, he said last year this country planted 30,000,000 acres while other countries planted 44,500,000 acres. Since cotton is a world commodity, we can regulate the price in the United States, he said.

ROGERS PLANNING GREAT FOOD SHOW

Varied Exhibits To Be Displayed at March 14-23 Exhibit Here.

Eclipsing in magnitude all previous efforts, the fifth annual food show and exposition of Rogers Stores, to be held at 230 Spring street from March 14 to 23, inclusive, will feature the most complete line of foodstuffs ever presented in Atlanta, according to John W. Gates, show director.

Every leading manufacturer of foods in the United States has been invited to participate in the show, and scores of brands, including staple foodstuffs as well as viands calculated to stimulate the jaded appetite, will be on display.

In addition to the food displays, there will be countless other attractions. Director Gates has announced Wednesday. For instance, a daily cooking school will be conducted under the auspices of the Georgia Power Company in which some of the nation's leading culinary experts will tell the housewives of Atlanta how to prepare new and tasty dishes.

Then, too, there will be a spring fashion show at which models will be able to see for herself just what the well-dressed woman will wear during the spring and summer of 1935. Living models will be used to display the frocks and gowns which will be displayed.

Likewise, the Ford Motor Company will make over a latest model of the first floor of the 230 Spring street building to exhibit its line of cars. And electric appliance manufacturers of the country will display everything from an electric refrigerator to a vacuum for the education of those attending the show.

PRUDENTIAL SESSIONS TO OPEN HERE TODAY

Three hundred representatives of the Prudential Insurance Company of America will be at the Biltmore hotel today and Friday for a conference on business and conditions for the coming year. There will be three sessions, two today and the closing one Friday morning.

Executives of the company from the home office at Newark, N. J., who will attend the meeting, include Franklin D'Olier, vice president; Henry Sutphen, vice president; and A. C. Metz, second vice president for the eastern department.

F. H. Yoemans, supervisor, was in the city Wednesday completing arrangements for the meetings. He said this conference was for the territory listed by the company as "Division N," of which Atlanta is the center. Representatives will be present from Memphis, Richmond, New Orleans, Miami and intervening points. The delegates include superintendents, assistant superintendents, agents, managers, assistant managers and special agents.

Improved business conditions over the country generally have been evident in recent months, Mr. Yoemans said, although he pointed out that the improvement so far is more marked in the smaller towns and the rural districts than in the big cities.

"Return to activity by one industry often means the return of general prosperity to an entire small town," he pointed out, "while in the large metropolitan centers, with their more diversified interests, the improvement has to be general before they feel its full effect."

It is two years since the company held its last conference in Atlanta.

RESTAURANT MEETING DRAWING NOTED MEN

Plans for the first annual southeastern restaurant show and exposition to be held here March 19-23 are nearing completion, J. B. Hogsd, secretary of the Georgia Restaurant Association, announced Wednesday.

The convention is being sponsored by the National Restaurant Association, the Georgia Association and local and state associations of southern states, Hogsd said.

Restaurant operators from the following states have been asked to attend the meeting, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, Arkansas, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas, as well as the District of Columbia.

The third day of the convention has been designated as code day. Boyd Gerhardt, deputy administrator of the restaurant code, is scheduled to participate in the discussion of proposed code modifications.

Among other scheduled speakers are Charles Laube, of New York; Frank Wiffler, of Chicago, and F. O. Sherill, of Charlotte, N. C., president and secretary and vice president, respectively, of the national association; Al Carter, of Chicago, and J. O. Mills, of Columbus, Ohio, past presidents of the national body; and Major A. T. Fletcher, of Washington, executive secretary of the national restaurant code authority.

FORREST CLECKLER FUNERAL RITES TODAY

Forrest Cleckler, 40, native Atlantan and for 18 years a clerk at the Southern railroad yards, died Wednesday at the residence, 424 Peoples street, S. W.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Misses Anita and Forrestine Cleckler; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cleckler; and two brothers, G. W. Roberts, of Oxford, Ala., and Miss Mary Helen Cleckler, and two brothers, Howard and Billy Cleckler.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill with the Rev. W. M. Sentell and the Rev. Harold Shields officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

H. L. Hurd, H. F. Boston, H. M. Cox, W. G. Cranford, F. S. Jones and Edgar Brinkley will serve as pallbearers.

LIABILITY COMPANY MEETS HERE TODAY

The American Mutual Liability Insurance Company will hold its district production department meetings in Atlanta Thursday and Friday of this week.

The first day's session will be conducted by Charles E. Hodges Jr., of Boston, executive vice president. Henry C. Kneppenberger Jr., vice president and sales manager, also from Boston, will conduct the meeting Friday.

The Atlanta office of American Mutual, pioneer American casualty company, is located in the Norris building.

Scout Leader Commends Plans of Young America

W. A. Dobson, chief executive of the Atlanta Council, Boy Scouts of America, gave a statement to The Constitution Wednesday highly commending the plans announced by the Young America Club, sponsored by the paper. Mr. Dobson has long been an ardent leader in training youth and developing character.

"As I understand the Young America page in The Atlanta Constitution, it is to carry news, activities and features that will be interesting to all boys and girls irrespective of organization affiliation. To me this is a most commendable plan," Mr. Dobson stated.

"I have long felt that a section devoted to such features as plaster of Paris casts of animal tracks, leaf printing, linoleum artwork, leather plait work, etc., as promoted as a part of the program of the Boy Scouts of America, would have a tremendous appeal and value to thousands of young people not Scouts. Likewise, features carried in such a section from other organizations and individuals would greatly enrich the handicraft opportunities of Boy Scouts."

"Then, too, this Young America page will acquaint youth organizations with the work that others are doing, and will also give guidance to boys and girls in the youth programs they would like to join."

Children under 18 years of age may join the Young America Club by simply mailing the application blank below properly filled out to The Constitution. Those joining will receive a club pin, a membership card, and, to those joining immediately, an attractive charter membership certificate.

The second Young America page will appear in The Constitution next Sunday. Watch for it!

1,000 REDS REPORTED SLAIN IN CHINA WAR

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28.—(Thursday)—(UP)—Heavy fighting between Chinese communists and government troops in a campaign to drive the communists from central China strongholds was reported by the Central News Agency.

The agency said more than 1,000 communists were slain in a battle near Chikow four days ago.

LOUIS INTERMEYER SPEAKS HERE TONIGHT

Louis Intermeier, poet, essayist and anthologist, will speak at the Jewish temple on Peachtree street at 8 o'clock tonight on the subject, "The Riddle of Being."

Intermeier has published several well-received books of poetry, among which are "Food and Drink," which was included in the best 50 books of 1933. He has been successful in the business world as a designer and manufacturer of jewelry, and his essays and criticisms have won him high acclaim.

THOMAS W. BOUCHIER DIES AT MIAMI, FLA.

Official of Mortgage Bond Company Formerly Was in Realty Business Here.

Thomas W. Bouchier, 43, southern representative of the Mortgage Bond Company, of New York, and formerly connected with the real estate business in Atlanta, died Tuesday night at Miami, Fla., where he was visiting. He had been ill only a few days.

A Methodist and prominently known in Atlanta church and business circles, he had made his home in Tampa, Fla., for the last two years. He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Martha Lamar, of Atlanta; a son, Thomas W. Bouchier Jr.; his mother, Mrs. S. T. Bouchier, of Bennettsville, S. C., who was with him at the time of his death; two sisters, Mrs. Carlye Kreps, of Atlanta, and Mrs. E. F. Schaffer, of Knoxville, Tenn., and a brother, Henry T. Bouchier, of New York city.

Funeral services will be held in Bennettsville, S. C., today.

INSURANCE SHOWS 10 PER CENT GAIN, OFFICIAL ASSERTS

More than $300,000 for every hour of every day in 1934 was paid to beneficiaries and living policyholders in the American Institution of Legal Reserve Life Insurance, M. Oliver Nix, president of the Atlanta Life Underwriters' Association, revealed Wednesday.

"The new business written in 1934 increased 10.1 per cent over the previous year, showing that the confidence of citizens generally is gaining," he said.

"Last year insurance companies disbursed to policyholders and their beneficiaries $2,700,000,000, of which two-thirds was paid to living policyholders."

"The security of life insurance is further emphasized by the fact that the assets of legal reserve life insurance companies increased last year 5 per cent. During the years 1929 to 1934, the assets of these companies have increased 24 per cent," Mr. Nix said.

Insurance Companies Beaten On Social Security Measure

House Committee Retains Voluntary Annuity Clause and Joins Senate in Promising Early Vote.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Overriding protests of insurance companies, the house ways and means committee voted 12 to 6 today against elimination of voluntary annuities from the social security bill and near final completion of its work on the bill.

The schedule was to have the much-revised bill ready for presentation to President Roosevelt shortly after he returns to the capital tomorrow. Then it would be given final committee consideration and presented to the house some time next week. Early committee action at the senate end of the capital also was indicated. Chairman Harrison, of the senate finance committee, said his committee would begin consideration of the bill as soon as the house ways and means committee completes rewriting it, without waiting for action by the house.

Harrison's comment disclosed a change of plans, since he originally had announced action would be held up until the house voted on the measure.

Under the voluntary annuity section of the social-security bill, as approved today, any individual could buy bonds—"annuity certificates"—from the treasury.

When he reached 65 years of age, the certificates would mature, and he could be paid off in a lump sum or in monthly installments not to exceed $100 a month until he got back all he had paid in plus 3 per cent interest. If he died before all the certificates had been bought back, his original investment plus the 3 per cent interest, compounded annually, would go to his heirs.

Protests have been made that such a system would offer unfair competition with private insurance companies since these necessarily must have a bigger overhead.

Furthermore, committeemen argued that putting the federal government into the annuity business would not only let it compete with private companies but that if such a system was to be set up, it should be left to the states.

Most other plans in the security bill do leave broad discretion to the states, but they would have no control over or interest in the voluntary annuities.

Against the "competition" idea was advanced the contention that the federal system, since it would pay a maximum of $100 a month, would extend insurance against old age to a class not now covered by existing insurance companies.

At present, experts told the committee, many insurance companies do not like to write annuities for persons making less than $10,000 a year because the payments are barely large enough to cover administrative costs.

Apprentice Training Agency Is Organized

Organization of the state agency on apprentice training, designed by the national recovery administration to build up a supply of skilled workers in those trades in which it appears a shortage of such workers will occur, has been completed and the new unit will commence functioning immediately, according to D. B. Laster, state labor compliance officer, who has been elected chairman of the agency.

While the agency will not act as an employment bureau, it will approve contracts between employers and apprentices where the latter will learn trades while employed at below-code wages. The age limit will range from between 17 and 22 years, and the apprentices must spend at least three hours a week in school studying subjects related to the trade which he or she is learning.

Members of the agency board are H. W. Boers, J. P. McGrath, O. E. Petry, Albert W. Gossett, Lincoln McConnell and J. F. Cannon. Both the Georgia Federation of Trades and the Georgia Manufacturers' Association are represented on the board.

THE 30-HOUR WEEK FALLACY
The danger to southern industry in the proposal of a 30-hour week for labor as an economic stimulant is forcefully presented in a statement made before the senate judiciary committee by Dr. Gus W. Dyer, of Vanderbilt University, appearing as a representative of the Southern States Industrial Council.

This eminent southern economist believes that not only would labor be the chief sufferer from it, in the long run, but that "for the government to put the unwarranted burden of a 30-hour week on factories at this time would be for the government to set itself positively against industrial development in the south."

The 30-hour week proposal contemplates the payment of the same wages now being earned for a 40-hour week, with the manufacturer shouldering the burden of the increased wage scale.

More than two-thirds of the industrial plants in the south employ less than 50 workers and their financial resources are small. Such an increase in their wage overhead would force them to the wall.

The only way in which the increased labor cost could be assumed would be by passing it on to the public through increased prices.

Dr. Dyer points out that "already the south has suffered unduly from loss of foreign markets for her cotton, as the textile industry clearly reflects, and this new policy would be good news to our Japanese friends and to other foreigners who will rush in to take advantage of the high cost of production forced on business in this country by the government."

Thus labor will be thrown out of employment, instead of new jobs being created.

Increased labor prices will mean the introduction of more labor-saving machines, and further unemployment will be caused. Dr. Dyer warns that "labor can beat the machine if they are willing to understand it; otherwise the machine will beat them."

He concludes that "the idea that the government can bring about economic recovery and restore normal business by creating a huge new buying power through forcing consumers to make large and continuous gifts to employees is the most conspicuous economic fallacy that has ever been considered seriously by people of intelligence."

The 30-hour week contains a serious threat to the industrial development of the south, and the members of congress from this section should present a united front against it.

PANAMA MAY GET GOLD
There is a strong probability that the little republic of Panama may win out in its demand that the payments made to it each year by the United States government be made in gold dollars.

The United States is legally obligated to pay Panama $25,000 each year as a "canal annuity," the agreement under which the canal was built calling specifically for payment in gold. During the past two years this country has offered payment in depreciated dollars and Panama has refused acceptance.

The supreme court's ruling in the gold clause cases held the United States cannot repudiate its own obligations, but that the holders of the certificates cannot demand gold because the yellow metal has been retired from circulation, and they are denied the right to sue. The decision also points out that with gold out of circulation, it is impossible to show any loss in purchasing power.

Panama can make out a good case on both of these grounds, since gold is still a medium of currency in that country and since it is worth more than the depreciated American dollar. Hence it is possible to show that the purchasing power of the gold dollar would be greater than that of the present dollar, and proof of loss could be presented if payment is not made in gold.

Thus the unusual situation arises that may make the grounds that will make it possible for the government to make payment on its gold certificates in the depreciated dollar will also make it necessary to pay in gold a debt to a tiny Central American country.

WHY NOT NOW?
Suggestion that a commission composed of members of the present house and senate be named to prepare a program for the reorganization of the county government system in Georgia, and report their findings to the next legislature, is contained in a communication, appearing on the opposite page, from Hon. J. J. Whitfield, commissioner of roads and revenues of Pulaski county and chairman of the legislative committee of the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia.

This outstanding county official believes that there should be a complete reorganization of county government structures and expresses the opinion that "our status is perfectly disgraceful for an enlightened state."

But, why wait for two years to inaugurate the necessary reforms? Certainly there are sufficient experts in Georgia whose advice could be sought by the general assembly in the preparation of a program that is a relic of a century or more ago.

The Association of County Commissioners, of which Mr. Whitfield is a leading member, has time and again called for a complete reworking of the county governments of Georgia. So has State Auditor Wisdom and other state officials and public leaders throughout the state.

The taxpayers have suffered too long already from the inefficiency and waste of antiquated local governments. Relief should be extended at this session of the general assembly, if possible—and it should be.

WAR SPIRIT IN TRANSIT
With the dove of peace apparently preparing to take up its abode in Europe and Asia, where wars and rumors of wars have kept the world fearful during recent years, reports of renewed discontent and continued fighting come from Africa, South America and Cuba.

The combined efforts of British and French diplomats, with the cooperation to a certain extent of Mussolini, have steadily banished the fear of new troubles in Europe, despite the belligerent attitude maintained by Hitler. Austria's internal conditions have quieted, Yugoslavia and Hungary have apparently pieced up their differences, Poland and Germany have reached a new understanding and the Saar plebiscite removed a trouble-spot of long standing.

The Far East likewise seems to have come upon a new era of better understanding between the dominant nations. Japan and Russia have stopped their verbal warfare, Manchuria becomes more a permanent, and even China and Japan appear to have come to more friendly relations.

In Africa and South America the change has been for the worse. Italian troops are pouring into the territory surrounding Abyssinia, and Mussolini has brusquely notified not only Abyssinia but the world that "Italy can mobilize 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 men in an emergency."

While the Abyssinian situation is undoubtedly threatening to the peace of the world, because of the British and French interests in the territory involved, it is doubtful if the Italians will go far enough to bring about serious protests from either London or Paris.

The unrest in Cuba, while probably more intense than that existing in any of the other trouble spots, is not serious in its relation to world affairs since there is little danger of any other nation becoming involved unless their nationals suffer, which is not likely.

The school strike in the island republic, leading as it has to the resignation of several of the strongest members of the cabinet of President Mendieta, has brought another serious crisis in the little republic that has undergone so many changes of administration during the past two years. Whether the strike will encompass the downfall of Mendieta and bring on another period of turmoil remains to be seen.

Paraguay and Bolivia continue their sanguinary struggle, with no prospect of peace in sight.

Thus the spirit of disturbance, centered for so long in Europe and the Far East, has passed to the equator and on southward.

The great American problem is to get people together, and after that is accomplished is to keep them parted.

If you can't keep down dissension in a woman's bridge club, naturally you wouldn't expect nations to get along in a peaceful manner.

Too many people try to pack up their troubles in the old quart bottle.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Africa's Tragedy.

A tremendous natural disaster, more devastating because more permanent than either an earthquake or a famine or even an exterminatory war, is about to occur in the heart of Africa. One of the most fertile regions on earth, an area the size of New York state, Michigan and Pennsylvania combined, is threatened with becoming an arid desert, a bare unproductive ocean of sand. This is the region of Tchad, at present inhabited by millions of human beings. These millions are going to perish unless they emigrate—before the disaster cannot be prevented. Lake Tchad is drying up. That formidable basin of water which has hitherto been the great barrier protecting the center and south of the African continent against the encroachments of the desert, is rapidly disappearing.

The Sahara wins. Even as the Gobi desert in Asia is slowly crawling westward over the Asiatic continent and destroying the balance of humidity in the air above the immense Yellow estuary and even causing sandstorms to appear as far west as the Ukraine and the Polish plain, so the Sahara is working its way forward step by step.

The Desert, the Enemy.

The desert. There you have the great enemy of mankind, compared to which the so-called yellow peril and the red peril and the black peril are but vague and transitory phenomena. It's the desert which has swallowed up the great Sumerian empire, Babylon, Nineveh, Egypt, Assyria, Persia, the great empires of the East. The desert is creeping over the Sinai peninsula and huge machines are necessary to keep the tracks of the Kantar and Jerusalem railroads from being buried under the sand, but a narrow strip of coastline remains uncovered.

Where is Carthage, the rival of ancient Rome? Under the sand. Why do you find tiny ruins, such as the temple of Jupiter at Baalbek standing in the middle of a wilderness? The answer is: the desert has crept forward and has made the region unfit for human habitation. The periodically recurrent famines in Russia, what are they, but the desert advance, bent on conquering Europe?

And Now Tschad.

It rains and uninterruptedly from October to April in the Tchad district. I travel with a rag tied over my face. If I spread a napkin for dinner in the open, this napkin is covered with an inch of sand in an hour's time. Yet these are not sandstorms. A sandstorm is something else again. I am speaking of the steady, never-ceasing descent of sand, which has buried empires teeming with commerce and peoples. There are natives who remember when the depth of Lake Tchad was five meters. The deepest point is now two meters and a half. One immense river, the Benue, which throws itself into Lake Tchad, is trying to escape the all-engulfing influence of the desert by forming underground passages, linking it with another river. One of these days the great Benue will suddenly leave its bed and flow into these widened passages. But then it will have linked itself with the Niger river and the Niger does not fall into Lake Tchad, but into the Atlantic ocean.

Imagine what this means. Imagine the Rhine in France, captured by the Loire. This would mean the whole valley of the Rhone with all its teeming cities from Lyons to Marseilles would become an unproductive desert. A disaster without equal! Suppose the St. Lawrence suddenly sucked up the Mississippi. Can you imagine what would become of the southern states and the middle western states? Desert they would be. Yet such things happen. Such a calamity Africa is now facing.

INEBRIATION AND ADDICTION.

An educated Class B fool writes: "The Racketeer is mentally captured by that I have to take a stimulant. It seems to give me more nervous energy. If I do not take a stimulant I find it difficult to hold my own in a discussion or argument. I am afraid the effective way of expressing them do not come to my mind as fast as they should."

These books of quotations do not inform me who classified fools, but some one opined they belong in three classes, viz., plain fools (Class A), damned fools (Class B) and I beg pardon (Class C).

There are millions of Class B fools in the same predicament as the correspondent describes.

A fool is a fool, usually, usually, as their "stimulant" Class B fools use alcohol. And the doubly guilty class use drugs.

Every one, I suppose, finds it difficult to find his mind in a discussion or argument. Every one, too, thinks of a better answer, a brighter remark or a more appropriate toast some time after the occasion. Most of the "mental" weakness, it is plain to see, is the after-thought of previous encounters. Unless one does review the whole thing afterward, much the question one is in one's mind, and with oneself, it is plain to see, to enter into arguments or discussions at all. But this habit of taking stock or reviewing the discussion after and makes such arguments educational.

By "stimulant" the correspondent means alcohol in one form or another. I take it. Webster gives as one definition for the word "stimulant" "An alcohol beverage."

But Webster is in error if that definition implies that alcohol is a stimulant in the physiological sense. As Webster correctly says, a stimulant is an agent which produces a temporary increase of vital activity in the organism or in any of its parts.

If the dose of alcohol is large enough to cause any appreciable change in the circulation, it is in the nature of depression rather than a stimulation. Alcohol never acts as a true stimulant to the brain, the spine cord, or the nerves. (The foregoing statements are quoted verbatim from Hare's "Practical Therapeutics.")

Hare further observes that "so far as the brain is concerned, it does not increase the vigor of thought nor its depth, nor does it enable a man to work out a problem which is difficult." Hare, mind you, advises the prescribing of alcohol in many conditions, though not as a "stimulant."

So I say that any one who would resort to alcohol for the purpose of "stimulating" his mind is a fool. That's how ineffectual begins.

But back of that, I believe, is the cigaret habit. Subtle propaganda teaches plain fools, young boys and girls that a cigaret is a good substitute for athletic prowess, physical stamina or cleverness, or that it ac-

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

BOOM WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—One business which the New Deal has inadvertently restored to prosperity is the legal business. You could not drop a writ of habeas corpus out of any downtown building here these days without hitting one or more lawyers on the head.

The town is swarming with two classes of them, one inside the New Deal, trying to legalize it, and the other outside, trying to illegalize it.

No one, not even the justice department, has charted the boom in the legal industry, or has any definite idea of the scope of it.

Without saying anything, Attorney-General Cummings began to look into the problem recently when he saw cases mounting on federal court dockets faster than prohibitions cases ever did. The unpublished result of his inquiry showed that 27,804 civil and criminal cases involving the various New Deal agencies (NRA, AAA, PWA, etc.) were pending at the end of December.

PROBLEM If President Roosevelt is the New Deal quarterback, this court phase of the legal boom has made Mr. Cummings a roving fullback. He has become the main secondary defense. To keep up with the onslaught, he is quietly establishing a private new statistics system to keep tab month by month on how the New Deal is faring in the courts. In the past such figures were collected only at annual intervals.

The amazing figure for December represents an increase in the past six months of 2,000 criminal cases, but a slight decrease in civil cases. It does not include cases under federal bankruptcy laws, which always average over 10,000 pending at a time.

This is the underlying reason why Mr. Roosevelt said in his NRA message to congress that some quicker method of handling NRA enforcement cases should be found. A cease and desist procedure is what he had in mind to replace criminal prosecutions.

ACCUMULATION While the NRA cases represent the largest batch, no phase of the New Deal is being omitted, even alcohol tax prosecutions. You may doubt it if you will, but 21,000 arrests have been made under this law since repeal and additional cases are piling up at the rate of several hundred weekly.

One explanation is that the deal is new and that this is the testing stage. The courts furnish the legal testing ground.

HOLDING COMPANIES There have been many subrosa rumors lately that the White House is growing cold to the holding companies bill. There is nothing in them. The peculiar White House position on the bill is the same as it was on the stock market bill. The president will appear unconcerned about it publicly but push it hard privately. This technique permits him to avoid complications.

LOBBYING Two separate clans of business lobbyists are assembling on the q. t. for separate big pushes on congress. One is the utility group, which is planning what appears to be a hopeless assault on the holding company bill.

The other is the air mail crowd, which is exuding righteous indignation over the latest trick played on them by the postoffice department. It seems they all agreed with Mr. Roosevelt to put air mail contracts under a revitalized interstate commerce commission which would make them non-political.

Imagine their chagrin when the bill to do it was proposed in congress a few days ago, carrying the provision authorizing the postmaster-general to consolidate lines at any time and designate primary routes. By this consolidating and redesignating device, the unfoolish Mr. Farley may take away lines from those who have and give them to those who have not.

CUTTING When no one is looking, the New Dealers are going to drop one provision of the new banking bill. This is the one permitting the president to terminate the board membership of a man who resigns as a reserve bank governor. Governors always have resigned from both offices whenever they felt out of sympathy with the administration. The provision therefore merely put polite practice into law. However, it suggests further political domination of the board, and therefore the New Dealers are getting ready to drop the provision.

MISPLACED CONFIDENCE TVA-ers have been bragging about the adverse Grubb decision in Alabama, because the supreme court set a precedent in their favor in an old Boulder Dam case. The bragging got so loud recently that interested New Deal lawyers dusted off the Boulder Dam cases and looked into them. They learned that the Boulder Dam case probably was not applicable because the court approved it on the ground that the sale of power wholesale, not retail, was incidental to flood control, navigation and irrigation. This is entirely different from the "yardstick" principle of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

FANCY WORK A fancy new idea in lobbying is being worked out in Arizona. The house of Arizona's state legislature has passed and the senate is now considering a bill to send a full-time lobbyist to Washington to protect the state's interests. He will receive $7,500 a year. The Arizona congressional delegation here is saying nothing about this unusual step, but is cursing under its collective breath.

PWA-ers icks, who tossed out of his office democratic national committeemen and other lobbyists, will have a problem now. He cannot toss out the official lobbyist of a sovereign state—although he probably will.

Being a Poor Nobody Doesn't Handicap A Napoleon Born To Rule

By Robert Quillen

It is characteristic of parents, especially in times like these, to fear the worst when their children are in the hands of a stranger. If their darling is a son, their chief fear is that his chosen mate will prove unworthy of him, waste his substance and become a hindrance and a burden.

If they are asked to give up a daughter, they are afraid she has surrendered to one who will have no substance to waste. "What," they ask, "has he got?"

Unless he has inherited a fortune, it is probable that he hasn't got much. It takes time to make money.

What is the wise thing to do? Wait, and thus sacrifice romance to security? Get married and live with the old folks? The answer depends on the kind of boy daughter has chosen.

If he has no special training or talent that qualifies him to render a service for which the world will pay, if he is prejudiced against hard work and believes success will come by some easy method when he gets a break if he is timid and too self-conscious to ask for what he wants; if he has no particular goal and little ambition; then, no matter how clean and fine and handsome he may be, Daughter is asking for trouble.

She will live in the poorest part of town, without comforts or beauty. She will do work that she hates. She will do without one necessity to buy another. She will hide from collectors or endure their impudence. She will suffer for want of money to pay the dentist and the doctor. At times she will be unwell, regretful and bitter. And she will age quickly, for tears and misery and want of hope are like a blight.

But if the boy, however poor, has a trade and talent and a keen delight in his job; if he has a good constitution and courage and is not awed by the solvent; if he has self-confidence, ambition, the will to stick and the conviction that ultimate success is certain; if he doesn't gamble or booze or regard successful men as enemies; if he is clean, well-mannered and honest, and if the girl is sensible and a good sport, then his poverty will be nothing worse than a season of camping out on the way to Easy Street.

I know one lad who had $5 left after paying the preacher, and a successful business six years later.

When you buy a race horse, it doesn't matter how poor he is, but only how fast he can go when you get him groomed and fed.

Department of justice operators will, in turn, present any evidence collected by them to United States Attorney Lawrence Camp, who will in turn carry the cases to the federal grand jury.

Names Not Made Public.

The internal revenue collector refused to reveal the names of racketeers whose income tax returns are under investigation, and said that nothing would be made public in the cases until the grand jury was ready for presentation to the grand jury.

"If we find evidence that attempts have been made to defraud the government, then the cases will become a matter of public record through grand jury proceedings," he said. "Otherwise, none of the names of persons under investigation will be made public."

The solicitor-general's office likewise declined to make public the names of the racketeers, but it was learned that at least one number game operator on the list is popularly believed to have an income of in excess of $50,000 a year, while another is believed to be "cleaning up" more than $30,000 yearly during the past three years.

Other states with similar laws are Virginia, Washington, Maine, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Michigan, Oregon, New Hampshire, Ohio and West Virginia.

Representative Samuel B. Hill, democratic, of New York, said he would provide such exemptions said after the conference "apparently we can forget

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Morgan 'Selling Out.'

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 27.—(P.)—Mr. J. P. Morgan is selling off his old possessions but the plight of the unfortunate millionaires continues to arouse no sympathy in the stony hearts of their masters, the predatory board, and there is no Society for the Improvement of the Condition of the Rich. First it was paintings that Mr. Morgan took down off the walls and sold away, perhaps with a parting tear in his eye and a pang in his heart. Now it is announced that some of the acreage of the old Long Island homestead is to go. The house, itself, will be retained, at least for the time being and the happy thought occurs to your correspondent that if the worst should come, the place might be converted into a thriving roadside with, perhaps, a floor show or a nickel piano. Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr., has been doing very well with a floor show in his combination cafe and dance hall in Rockefeller City but then, of course, Mr. Rockefeller's place is in the center of the city and the policemen there are the free spenders. Furthermore, the police protection is excellent in the city.

The objection to a roadside project in a lonely neighborhood is that an honest man generally has a hard time to keep out of the hands of the racketeers who send men around to the slot machines and threaten the owner with bodily harm if he protests. Moreover, experience elsewhere has shown that more often than not the racketeers, the policemen, the politicians have a piece of the racket and help to plant the pinneaples on premises whose owners refuse to reason. It is a phase that calls for study, although Long Island officers, unlike those around Chicago, are highly respectable officers.

Too Remote For Tourists.

If Mr. Morgan's place were not so remote from the main road it might have possibilities for study, but as a general thing the man by the side of the highway has all the advantage in this field. The tourists, dashing by in a great rush to get their vacation over with, are not inclined to turn into leafy byways even though the route be plainly marked in attractive signs. They seem to feel that a detour to see a beautiful scene, a lovely view from the road, might have some reasons for hiding that way and a man cannot be too careful where he puts up for the night with the wife and children. So even the sign, "J. P. Morgan, Tourists Accommodated, Hooked Rugs, Antiques and Chow Puppies" might have less pulling power with the tourists than a sign showing a much more modest character set within 20 feet of the concrete.

This is a cruel, practical world and a man has got to give the public what it wants. He has got to get in line with the tourist, the man who is always comparing the beds with those which they sleep in at home, and if there are little children with them, they have to have their own room, too. And before they go, they write their names on the bed-room walls, boasting that they have covered Montreal, Boston, Providence, New Haven and West Point in three days.

Rich Man's Problem.

Still, what is a millionaire to do these days, with the poor demanding a share of the wealth and the rich reduced to shabby poverty instead? In New York, last week, Mr. Sherman Billingsley, the proprietor of the Stock Club, introduced a complete new set of talent for his floor show, which is a place where every lady and gentleman in the east was a bona fide social register. The booking agent assured him that they were social registers and showed him the names in the social register to prove it.

"They wouldn't be working in a night club if they didn't need the money," the booking agent said.

"Well, they won't be working in a night club if they don't earn it," said Mr. Billingsley. "Tell them that."

"But," said the booking agent, "do you realize that these people are taking a great chance in appearing in your night club? If the social register finds out about it, they will be tossed out of the social register."

"And that ain't all," Mr. Billingsley said. "I am hiring these hands because they are social registers. If they get tossed out of the social register they get tossed out of the Stock Club, too. Tell them that."

Extravagant Grudge.

Moreover, common citizens gathered in the Stock Club to spend money of an evening were politely requested by Mr. Billingsley not to toss any throw-ups at the social registers, who are singers and dancers. He didn't want to spoil them, Mr. Billingsley said. It will be interesting to note next fall whether Mr. Morgan, as usual, sails for Scotland to shoot the grouse, an old custom of his and very expensive, considering that he generally uses his own boat to go where the grouse is. It seems a most extravagant method of paying off a grudge for probably, in a pinch, the same results could be achieved for a ten dollar bill by hiring somebody in Scotland to pour a grouse.

J. Truman Neal, 82, Retired Banker, Dies

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 27.—(P.)—J. Truman Neal, retired banker of Thomson, died at the home of a daughter here this afternoon. He was 82.

Mr. Neal was one of the organizers of the Bank of Thomson and served as its first cashier. He was active in affairs of the Methodist church, serving as a steward for 40 years in the Thomson church and as a member of several important boards of the North Georgia Conference.

ANTI-NARCOTIC ACT PASSED BY HOUSE, SENT TO HOUSE

The house ways and means committee Wednesday night perfected the general tax act but left it open for the possible inclusion of a sales tax and a revised income tax law.

The subcommittee named to study proposals for a sales tax at the request of Speaker E. D. Rivers, of the house, had not completed its work and asked an extension of time until today.

Twice during the day Rivers sat in executive session with the subcommittee, but no bill came out.

The subcommittee named to study section by section, and some new provisions were stricken, members of the committee waging a fight to keep down increases over the act of 1927 under which the state is now operating.

The act includes special nuisance taxes, occupation taxes and levies imposed by the state.

A new clause was added making laundries that do dry cleaning pay a dry cleaning tax as well as a laundry tax. At the same time the committee reduced from 20 to 10 per cent the penalty for nonpayment of taxes.

Under the section dealing with firearms, shotgun shells were exempted from any tax. The bill also provided that no taxable business was required to pay more than $500 annually.

Stricken from the measure were new provisions which sought to levy a tax on all delivery trucks, on telephones, on telephone tolls and on contractors' materials.

They were removed from the bill after vigorous objections by Representative W. B. Hartfield, of Atlanta, and others.

The tax act will be reported out in the house as soon as the sales tax and income tax revision are disposed of. Committee Chairman John B. Spray said.

Suggests Commission To Plan Reorganization Of County Governments

Editor Constitution. You have joined me in a campaign for better county government. One or two bills are pending looking to uniform accounting and to uniform revision of the constitution. However, these are single shots, and I believe our effort should be towards a complete reorganization of county governments. I believe the union has the article in Sunday's Constitution with F. M. Reeves, of Cornelia.

I have suggested to Mr. Reeves that we seek a conference with our legislative leaders, Messrs. Redwine and Rivers, looking to getting through this session a resolution appointing a joint commission from both houses to study to by some practical students of county government who will make a survey and report to the 1937 session of the legislature. The manner that the several states have reorganized, in order to have them meet present-day conditions.

The Association of County Commissioners made up a program, but there has been so much legislation in conflict with our affairs, that we had to turn to a defense program rather than an offensive one. If we had offered any of our proposed reforms, some 13 states now have such commissions at work, some reporting to legislatures in session, others still at work. If this thing is added to you, I will welcome your valued aid in a forthcoming issue, and am requesting that my name be omitted in any article. Not that I am object, but I think I have been mentioned personally so frequently that some might think I am a crank on these matters.

Our status is perfectly disgraceful for an enlightened state.

J. J. WHITFIELD,
Commissioner of Roads and Revenues of Pulaski county, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Association of County Commissioners.

HOMER PARKER PLANS TO VISIT F. D. R. TODAY

Former Representative Rumored for Aviation Post in War Department.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Former Representative Homer G. Parker, of Statesboro, who arrived in Washington early this morning, will confer with President Roosevelt at the White House tomorrow concerning an appointment in the federal service. Mr. Parker will be accompanied to the White House by Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, who arranged the appointment with the chief executive. It has been rumored for some time that the former representative of the first Georgia congressional district was under consideration as assistant secretary of war in charge of aviation, the position last held by F. Truett Davidson, of New York, in the Hoover administration. The office pays a salary of $9,000 a year. Mr. Parker, however, refused to discuss his preference and declared he was confident the president would give him something. "Late last year the Georgia house delegation unanimously endorsed him for the war department position, and are understood to still be a unit behind him."

RETAIL MERCHANTS' BOARD IS APPOINTED

T. C. Dickson, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, announced Wednesday that the organization of the 1935 board of directors has been completed and the first meeting of the board will be held Friday at 12:30 o'clock at a luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic Club. A number of matters of interest to the members and to their customers will be considered. All trade lines connected with the association have representation on the board of directors, making it a truly democratic body. The principal officers for 1935 are T. C. Dickson, president; A. E. Foster, first vice president; and Ivan Allen, chairman of executive committee.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts which when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't take liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 26-cent drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

Six More Firms Join Honor Roll As Fund for Zoo Mounts Slowly

Six additional Atlanta business houses Wednesday joined the list of 100 per cent givers to the zoo fund. For every employee they subscribed at least one dime to the campaign to raise 150,000 dimes, which must be completed successfully before that wonderful collection of wild animals and rare birds now housed at the Briercliff zoo, on the home estate of Asa G. Candler, can be transferred to Grant park.

Mr. Candler has offered his entire collection to the municipal zoo on condition that proper housing facilities are erected for them there. It will cost every one of the 150,000 dimes to do this, even with practice of utmost economy.

Mayor Key, in view of the self-evident fact that the city treasury at this time cannot afford this sum, has asked citizens of Atlanta and Georgia, who appreciate the splendid zoo this gift creates at Grant park, to give as many dimes as they can spare toward the fund.

Lewis F. Gordon, zoo fund treasurer, announced Wednesday that the total now on deposit is 28,749.6 dimes, leaving a little over 131,000 yet to be sent in. Of course the schools, from whom big things are expected in view of the children's enthusiastic interest in the zoo, have not yet reported their contributions.

In addition to the six business houses which joined the 100 per cent list, whose names will be found in another column, several interesting contributions were made Wednesday.

Officers and enlisted men of the United States army at Fort McPherson gave 96 dimes while an additional gift of 30 dimes was received from employees of the Exposition Cotton mills, who already had given generously. A. P. Shelly sent in 10 dimes while little Mary Emma Smith did her part when she sent all she could possibly spare, 1 dime.

Gifts may be sent to any of the Atlanta papers or to Mr. Gordon, the treasurer, at the Citizens & Southern National bank, on Marietta street. Or deposits to the fund may be made at Window Five in that bank. For convenience contributors may use the coupon published here:

ATLANTA-BIRMINGHAM

NEW AIR SCHEDULE

Atlanta will be afforded a new round-trip air travel schedule following authorization by the postoffice department of a new flight between the two cities, effective Monday, Oscar Bergstrom, traffic representative of Delta Air Lines, announced Wednesday.

Atlanta also will be connected with Charleston, S. C., under the new schedule. The plane will leave Charleston at 3:35 p. m., E. S. T., arriving at Atlanta at 5:57, C. S. T., and will leave 43 minutes later to arrive in Birmingham at 8:04 o'clock that night.

The plane will leave Birmingham on the return trip at 9:50 o'clock that night, arriving in Atlanta at 11:10 o'clock.

Postoffice department authorization for a stop at Tyler, Texas, on the Atlanta-Dallas line, will also become effective Monday, it was announced.

NAVAL RADIO UNITS

WILL BE INSPECTED

Official inspection of the master control radio station and the Atlanta unit of the naval communications reserve, as well as state and local district headquarters located here will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the armory at Georgia Tech. The inspection will be made by Lieutenant Commander C. J. Wheeler, United States navy.

Lieutenant R. R. Brewin, of Atlanta, is commander of the sixth naval district, comprising the states of Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina. Lieutenant J. L. Ellis is state commander and the local unit is under the direction of Ensign W. V. Gearhart.

FEDERAL 'BABY' BONDS

TO GO ON SALE FRIDAY

The United States saving bonds, popularly known as "baby" bonds, in denominations ranging from $25 to $1,000, will be placed on sale Friday at the Atlanta postoffice, Leon Livingston, acting postmaster, announced Wednesday.

The baby bonds mature in 1945 and will yield an average return of 2.9 per cent if held until maturity. Issue costs of the lowest denomination bonds are $18.75, which will pay $25 on the maturity date. Other issue costs are in proportion.

Exempt from all taxation, the bonds may be presented for redemption at any time upon 60 days' notice. They will be on sale Friday at the money order windows in the Atlanta postoffice, and also in all other first, second and third-class postoffices in the state, Mr. Livingston said.

YOUNG COUPLE JAILED IN ATLANTA KIDNAPING

Clyde Christopher, 19, and Wife, Held in New Orleans for Abducting Girl.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Clyde Christopher, 19, and his wife, also 19, were taken into custody by New Orleans police late today at the request of Atlanta authorities in connection with the alleged kidnaping of 14-year-old Ruby Milligan, of Atlanta.

The couple was arrested in a rooming house here with their 10-month-old baby and are being held on a fugitive charge pending further word from Atlanta, New Orleans police said.

Police said the Milligan girl has been quartered at the House of Good Shepherd here since February 8, when she was found living with Christopher and his wife and baby.

Last Monday the youth was tried in criminal district court here on a statutory charge and acquitted.

He was rearrested with his wife at the request of Atlanta solicitor-general's office, which informed New Orleans authorities that Christopher and his wife had been indicted for kidnaping February 1 by a Fulton county grand jury.

The couple denied the charge. Mrs. Christopher told police the Milligan girl was her husband's sweetheart before they were married three years ago.

"We met Ruby in Eufaula, Ala., about three weeks ago while we were hitch-hiking to New Orleans where my husband planned to get work selling newspapers," Mrs. Christopher said.

"We never kidnaped the girl. She asked us to let her come with us to New Orleans and we did. She was with us a few weeks ago when my husband was arrested by police."

Detective Louis Kuerfelle, in charge of the New Orleans vice squad, said the Atlanta authorities informed him the kidnaping complaint was made by Mrs. Eula Milligan, the girl's mother.

Clyde Christopher and his wife, Mrs. Meta Christopher, were named in an indictment charging kidnaping returned by the Fulton county grand jury February 1. The indictment was drawn on complaint of Mrs. Eula Milligan, of 149 Berean avenue, S. E.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.

"I wouldn't think of it," said Sherry. "Friday night I'm giving a little farewell party for Paul and the other boys in the orchestra, and you and Eric, I've got to run along now. I have an appointment with Henderson, the advertising man."

On Friday night after the last show the musicians in Eric's orchestra, with their sweethearts and wives, came to Sherry's apartment. There was incessant talk of California, the place of miraculous opportunities. Wives were thrilled; sweethearts were sad.

The corks in the champagne bottles popped. Some couples danced. The hungry members of the orchestra found satisfaction around the table, abundantly spread.

Eric drew Sherry aside. "Now that the time has come, I don't know whether I want to go or not."

"Don't be solemn, Eric."

"I know, but this feeling of loss something I've never had. His head bent closer. "I am more in love with you than I have ever been with any woman."

"Guess what? The trumpet player is going to get married in the morning. They just made up their minds. Come on and join the party, Sherry."

It was 4 o'clock when they left, some jubilant, others weary. They thanked Sherry for the "swell" party and told her they would see her at the train at noon.

"Call me at 10," she said to Frances, and went to her bedroom. But, tired as she was, sleep would not come. Sherry, for the first time, felt alone and afraid, and the gnawing emptiness in her heart was hard to bear.

"Tony, why are you making me suffer like this? It is suffering. Oh, come back and find me, darling, and don't let me go out and look for you. Tony, come back, come back!"

And she thought of the proud white head of his mother—bowed, broken, and the eyes of his father, dark eyes like his, hurt. They waited, too. They lay awake in a dark room and waited, jumping at the ringing of the telephone and their hands trembled when telegrams came. "Hollywood at Christmas if I don't find him. Will it be Hollywood or will it be Tony at Christmas?"

A few minutes before noon she was at the station in the midst of an excited group. Janey, warm and happy, stood with her arm through Paul's. Eric hovered near with disparaging eyes. The bride of the trumpet player looked bewildered and frightened, clinging to the arms of her husband of an hour. Sweethearts pleaded, "You'll write, darling?" and several children skirted through the crowd.

Sherry was smiling in the sunlight, feeling that one member of the family" was about to be left behind.

Eric scowled. "Trains sicken me. Sherry, come along. It's not too late. I'll get a ticket and you can have your clothes..."

Janey said, "I hope I don't see you at Christmas, Sherry. I hope you and Tony are together."

Eric said, "Can't I see you alone for a minute? There are only a few minutes left."

He took her arm and led her away.

"You're nervous," she said.

"I've waited for this for years, and now I don't want it. Sherry kiss me just as she has when you mean it."

She put her arms around his neck and lifted her lips. He kissed her, held her.

"I love you," he said. "Why couldn't you have loved me?"

People were hurrying past them and Eric was being swallowed up among them. Janey planted a warm sweet kiss on Sherry's cheek and ran to catch up with Paul. A girl next to Sherry sobbed, "They're gone! He's gone!"

Sherry shook her head. "Yes. They're gone."

Summer dragged into autumn of brisk windy days. Sherry, her contract signed, her sponsor satisfied with the arrangements of making her broadcasts from different cities in which she was to appear, showed up, as she said, Henderson, "a cross-country tour."

A chauffeur had been hired, a pleasant, middle-aged man, to drive Sherry and Frances to their various destinations.

On the stage of a Baltimore theater one Friday afternoon Sherry made her first public appearance. Dressed in a startling black dress, her hair also and shining, she looked serene and beautiful. Two songs she sang in a rich, throaty voice which brought a storm of applause. And Sherry was thinking, "They like me! I'm glad of that. And young girls sitting out there, out of work, shabbily dressed, envy me. They don't know."

She made five public appearances a day and returned to the hotel, sleepy and weary.

"Funny," she said to Frances, "when I was youngest, I used to think that singers went to parties after the show, one party after the other, until dawn. But they're too tired! All I want now is sleep."

"Mrs. Ghent called," Sherry's maid told her.

"Call her back in the morning, Frances," Sherry said. "And tell her I'll drive out Sunday afternoon between shows."

Frances shook her solemn head. "I'm afraid you've taken too much on yourself."

"I'll get used to it."

But Sherry knew she hated it. It was not the singing that she hated but the endless traveling, the changing of clothes, and the necessity of being poised and charming at all hours despite her weariness and fatigue. Singing brought her amusement, newspapermen, answering questions—all this was a part of it.

"I'd like once more," she said to Frances as she waited in the car to go to bed, "to walk into a store or in a crowd without being recognized."

Frances smiled cynically.

"It sounds delightful, doesn't it?"

Sherry said, "People have made me and I want to escape from them. But I'm so tired of being a public figure."

Frances turned out the light and went away, thinking that her young mistress was very talkative tonight. But Frances was an adoring slave. She did not quarrel, or throw shoes or make silly demands. And she was very generous.

On Sunday afternoon Sherry drove out to the valley, and Carl and Felice were apparently very much pleased to see her.

"We saw you last night," said Felice, "at the theater, but we didn't try to see you. We thought you'd be too tired."

"I was... horribly. What a lovely room this is, Felice! I can just about get myself settled in one of these chairs when I'll have to go back and get into evening clothes."

She had tea with them in the paneled room, glancing anxiously at the clock over the fireplace meanwhile. When she rose to leave Carl said, "I got you into this Sherry. Do you hate me for it?"

"Of course I don't."

"We're coming to see you again," said Felice. "You looked gorgeous. Not nervous at all. Are the people in the theater nice?"

"Extremely. Good-bye. You know I go to Washington from here and from there to points west."

"Good luck," said Carl.

Sherry said, her eyes very dark un-

By John Harvey Farley, Ph.D.

Historians are quite agreed that the North American continent was discovered by John Cabot and his son Sebastian, June 24, 1497. Columbus discovered the South American continent nearly a year later, in 1498—having found the islands off the South American coast in 1492. Some claim that the Norwegians who colonized Iceland in 874 and Greenland soon after have seen the coast of North America. This was 500 years previous to Cabot and Columbus.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

LAMA DEMONS.

Nearly half of what is loosely called "the Chinese Republic" is made up of Mongolia and Tibet. These lands are largely mountains and deserts, and have a population of only a few million persons.

Mongolia and Tibet are famed as the homes of the religion called "Lamaism." A lama is a priest, and the religion is a kind of Buddhism, though it differs from what the great Buddha taught.

Some of the lamas are fond of giving dances in which they wear masks standing for the faces of gods and ghosts; and it is the home of the Dalai Lama—head of the church.

Most of those who have held the office of Dalai Lama have been killed in only a few years after they have reached the age of 15. It is supposed that there has been foul play, sometimes at least, in doing away with the Dalai Lama before he was old enough to uphold his rights against the elders of the faith.

There are lama temples in Peiping and other cities of the real China. One of the temples in Peiping has been the home of as many as 1,500 Tibetan monks.

During recent years, most of the lamas in eastern China have lost the support they once had from the public treasury. This has been due to the revolution. To obtain funds for themselves, they have taken to begging.

In speaking of Buddhism in China, it is well to bear in mind that there are many kinds. Just as Christians have divided themselves into many creeds and sects, the Buddhists have split into many groups. In a general way, Lassa (also spelled Lhasa) is looked upon as the holy city of the faith; but not all Buddhists would obey orders from there.

Less than 1 per cent of the Chinese have joined the Christian faith; but, Buddhism and other native faiths are losing part of their hold on the people. Learning the ways and ideas of the western world is slowly changing China's views about religion.

Millionaire Tells of Accord In Alleged 'Wife-Exchange'

Correspondent in 'Quadrangle' Divorce Suit Says Emerson Agreed To 'Step Aside' in Wife's Affairs.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Barton Sewell, millionaire sportsman, avoided relating some of the oft-told details of an alleged informal exchange of wives with Walter Emerson, actor-writer, when his turn came today to testify in Emerson's divorce suit.

Sewell has been named co-respondent by Emerson, whose wife, Mrs. Jane Emerson, socialite, countered with a cross-complaint naming Mrs. Leah C. Sewell as co-respondent.

The alleged exchange of wives occurred following a beach party last November.

When Sewell came up to that point in his testimony he asked:

"Do you want me to go into the details of—of—what has been told so many times here?"

He referred to Mrs. Emerson's previous testimony that he and she were in one bedroom during the night while Mrs. Sewell and Emerson were in another, adjoining.

"If what has already been told us in according to fact, you may so testify, and spare us the details," Judge Lindsey said.

"I so testify," Sewell replied. He said the following day all four persons returned to the city together. Shortly afterward, he said, he and the Emersons met in the home of a mutual friend.

Emerson Told of Love. "I told Walter I was in love with Jane," Sewell said, in a low voice. "He said he had been aware of that for some time, and said he had been unhappy for several years in his married life. He told me that under the circumstances he would step aside and let us do with each other as we saw fit."

"And what was the atmosphere during all this?"

"Very cordial. I might say exceptionally agreeable."

"Did you and Emerson shake hands when you left?"

"We did."

This conversation, Sewell said, occurred November 28. The night before, it was testified, he spent the night in the apartment house occupied by Mrs. Emerson and Mrs. Edmund Scholtz, her mother.

Mrs. Scholtz was on the witness stand throughout the morning. She was asked about this episode.

"Did you reserve a room at the hotel or apartment house for Mr. Sewell?"

She said she did. "At my daughter's request."

Mrs. Scholtz continued that her daughter and Sewell had told her each had separated from their respective mates.

Daughter Slept Out. "Where did your daughter spend the night—with you?"

"She said she was going to sleep with a friend. That's what she told me, and I believed her," Mrs. Scholtz replied.

"But you don't know, or your own knowledge, where, in the apartment house, Jane Emerson slept the night of November 27?"

The witness said she did not know. Mrs. Scholtz was asked about two other men, with whom her daughter was acquainted during the 12 years of her married life with Emerson.

Emerson's attorney sought to show, through questioning, that Mrs. Emerson had had "affairs" with a Bradford Babbitt.

"He was a New Yorker, an artist," Mrs. Scholtz replied.

"Did you and your husband ever have any dissension over him?"

The witness replied in the negative until she was shown a letter, which she identified as one of her own, written to Edmund Scholtz, her husband, in 1928.

Attorney Milton Cohen, conducting the cross-examination, read from it: "The thing that distresses me is Jane's indifference to her home. At one time, she was considered the loveliest of mothers. Now all is changed."

Cohen shouted, "that you and your husband not only discussed this man, but that your husband and Walter Emerson broke up the affair between him and your daughter?"

Atlanta Named. "It is not," the witness replied firmly.

Cohen then asked her a similar question about Ernesto Alvarado, whom he did not identify. She again replied in the negative.

Mrs. Scholtz also was cross-examined on the subject of the heart-balm suit brought against Emerson, three weeks after his marriage in 1923.

Checks paid Suzette Tobey, former dancing partner of Emerson's, were introduced in evidence. Mrs. Scholtz said she wrote them.

Miss Tobey will be married to Herbert Dabney, of Atlanta, Ga., when she returns to Alameda, Cal., from the trial, Dabney said at Alameda today. The couple obtained a marriage license February 13, but Dabney said their wedding plans were changed when his fiancée was called as a witness here.

Herbert Dabney, who is quoted as having said he and Miss Suzette Tobey

3 Held in Robbery Of U. S. Mail Truck

HAZARD, Ky., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Floyd Hadden, Ralph Hall and Marvin Hall, arrested near Jackson this afternoon on charges of robbing a United States mail truck of $12,500 in pay roll money this morning, were brought to Hazard and placed in the Perry county jail tonight.

James Napier, driver of the government truck, and his son Ward, who accompanied him, told officers they recognized the three men under arrest as the bandits. Officers said that Bohn Cripps, employed at Tribbey, identified two of the men and also the automobile they were using.

2 Columbus Warrants Accuse Harvey, Smith

Two more complaints against Leland Harvey and Aubrey Smith were revealed Wednesday when Sheriff J. I. Lowry received two warrants from Columbus, Ga., charging the men with holdups there. The men were identified here several days ago as having held up two grocery stores at Columbus.

The warrants were returned to Columbus police with information that the men are held by the federal government in default of $50,000 bonds, as the result of the holding of two banks charged with the holding of two banks at Rome, and that Fulton county wants the pair when the national government is through with them.

FEDERATION OF TRADES NAMES HARPER HEAD

A. Steve Nance, President Six Years, Declines To Run for Re-election.

J. A. Harper was elected president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades Wednesday night to succeed A. Steve Nance, who declined to run for re-election after having served in that office for six years. Nance explained that pressure of other business made it imperative that he relinquish the office, though he said he would continue to be active in the interests of the federation.

Vice presidents elected were John Scott, J. Sid Tiller, T. L. Elder and Albert Gossett.

George F. Haney, who has served as recording and corresponding secretary for a number of terms, was re-elected, as was William Van Houten, treasurer.

Trustees elected were Charles B. Greming, Carl Karston and Miss Alie B. Mann.

Members elected to the finance and auditing committee were E. O. McClain, William Purdie and F. C. Puckett.

T. E. Kinard was elected sergeant-at-arms.

Nance was elected delegate to the convention of the American Federation of Labor, at Atlantic City. The alternate was J. O. Jablonsky.

The following were named delegates to the convention of the Georgia Federation of Labor: Nance, Gramling, Tiller, Elder, Scott, Van Houten, Miss Mann, Haney, Harper, Dewey, Johnson, Gossett and J. A. McCoy.

HOUSE PROMISED VOTE ON WAR PROFITS BILL

McSwain Says Administration Favors His Measure as Probe Continues.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—While the senate munitions committee recorded new evidence of the millions made during the World War, the house today was promised an opportunity to vote on the McSwain bill aimed at strangling profiteering in times of conflict.

The house rules committee assured consideration of the anti-war profits measure "in a week or so" after Representative McSwain reminded that President Roosevelt said recently "the time has come to take the profits out of war."

The evidence brought forward at the senate hearing showed the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation and its subsidiaries had made $68,000,000 in profits during the World War period. They paid about $12,400,000 in taxes on this.

At the end of an afternoon session Stephen Rauschenbush, senate committee counsel, indicated that his committee also intended to speed its legislative program to eliminate war profits.

He said the committee probably would finish with Bethlehem tomorrow, since the committee was pressed for time to draft its own plan to abolish war profits.

McSwain said he had been promised there would be four hours debate on the bill, which aims at war profits by setting maximum prices when the country enters a war.

F. D. R. Favors Move. Instructed by the rules committee to get the president's reaction to the legislation, McSwain assured the members the chief executive favored the general move.

After quoting the president's anti-war profits declaration, McSwain said: "We mustn't assume that the president has any idea of the detailed machinery to do that."

He added that Bernard Baruch and Hugh S. Johnson, members of a committee named by President Roosevelt to study anti-war profit proposals, favored his bill.

Disclosure of the profits of the shipbuilding company brought a protest from Senator Bone in the munitions committee against what he termed "preaching by private shipyard that it was 'unpatriotic and immoral' to have the government build its own ships in its own yards."

Overestimate Costs. Both his and Chairman Nye, republican, North Dakota, of the committee, declared the navy had demonstrated the government yards could construct ships at a lower cost than the private yard. The senators estimated there was a saving of about $2,000,000 on cruisers built by the private yards at prices ranging from $10,000,000 to $11,000,000.

This brought an immediate challenge from S. W. Wakeman, vice president of the Bethlehem Corporation. He said there was dispute about the navy figures.

The committee turned to profits made by the Bethlehem Corporation. Wakeman agreed that at times the profits on individual ships had ranged up as high as 25 per cent.

Such profits came, he said, when the company was in doubt about the style of building, such as the lighter cruisers designed in compliance with the naval limitations treaty.

"In dealing with this now and then unknown equation," he told the committee, "we overestimated in some instances, and we effected savings which we had no reason to anticipate at the moment."

Fireman Discharged On Charge of Drinking

Atlanta board of firemasters, at its regular monthly meeting Wednesday night at the fire department headquarters, continued its drive to eliminate drinking men from the department by discharging J. W. Pittman, of Station No. 15, for drinking while in uniform.

A brief meeting was held with very little business brought before the board, according to Walter M. Sutton, chairman.

MISTRIAL DECLARED IN DAVE BARRY CASE

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A mistrial was declared today by Judge Michael Feinberg in the cases of Dave (Long Count) Barry and Abraham

Karatz, former St. Paul attorney, who are charged with embezzling $55,000 from the Amalgamated Trust & Savings bank. The action was caused by the sudden serious illness of Barry's counsel, W. W. Smith.

FORD TRUCK SALES SHOW BIG INCREASE

Improved Conditions Reflected by Gains, Says W. A. Morrison, Branch Official.

Improved business conditions are reflected by tremendous increases in the sale of truck and commercial automobile equipment, W. A. Morrison, manager of the commercial department, Atlanta branch of the Ford Motor Company, said Wednesday.

Mr. Morrison has just concluded a series of conferences with Ford dealers in the Atlanta area and reports "that in spite of the heaviest demand in years for Ford trucks and commercial cars, advance inquiries and orders point to an even greater sales volume during March, April and May."

"Passenger car sales," continued Mr. Morrison, "might indicate a desire for modern transportation on the part of those who can afford it, whereas truck and commercial units are bought with confidence in future business and a desire to reduce operating costs by the use of modern economical equipment."

"Our dealers throughout the Atlanta territory report an almost unanimous demand on the part of experienced truck operators for such features as a full floating rear axle, torque tube drive, V-type eight-cylinder engine and other improvements that give added speed, dependability and economy. These features, together with smart lines, safety glass in cab and an adjustable front seat, all of which are found in the Ford truck for 1935, have proved an incentive to commercial owners to bring their hauling equipment up to date and take full advantage of increased opportunities for expansion."

"Our dealers consider the 1935 Ford truck, based on reports of owners, keeping accurate cost records, feel that the present model is not only the fastest and most rugged truck they have ever offered, but the most economical and satisfactory ever built by the Ford Motor Company."

Lindy Ransom Notes
Said Found in Boston

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—(UP)—The Boston Post says today that approximately $800 in Lindbergh ransom money has been passed in and around Boston during the past year.

Federal authorities declined comment on the report. The Post says that $800 of the money has been passed since the arrest of Hauptmann and that $300 was passed here only last Friday.

According to the Post, the recovered money is now in the hands of officials of the United States attorney-general's office at Washington. Much of the money, the Post says, was passed at railroad stations and airports in Boston and Providence, R. I.

Many Atlantans Are Glimpsed At Smart Gatherings in Miami

By Sally Forth.

IT LOOKS like "homecoming week" in Miami, Sally hears, because so many Atlantans are enjoying the pleasures that abound there. Mrs. Hunter Perry has joined her sister, Mrs. Charles A. Dana, the former Agnes Ladd, of Atlanta, who resides in Bernardsville, N. J., and is spending several weeks at the Columbus hotel. Mrs. Arthur Howell and Mrs. LeRoy Childs motored to Palm Beach one day last week to have luncheon with Mrs. Frank Hawkins at The Breakers. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins have been in Florida for nearly two months, and they have divided their time between Palm Beach, on the American Riviera, and Miami, where they stop at the Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Dodd, Mr. and Mrs. William Satterthwaite and Ruth Dodd are devotees of the races, and occupy Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Lynch's box at Hialeah Park almost every afternoon. Sally can well imagine the admiring glances turned upon the box, for seldom is a family able to exhibit so much pulchritude as does Mrs. Dodd and her lovely daughters.

J. P. Allen flew to Miami and after a four-hour trip through the airways, declared it to be the most enjoyable way to reach his destination. He, too, is at the Columbus, as is W. E. Chapin, who, after being there nearly eight weeks, will begin his motor trip homeward some time this week.

Mrs. Andrew Calhoun and Louise, her debutante daughter, were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Price at the Bath Club last Saturday. Always a stunning pair wherever they appear, Sally is informed that on this occasion they wore smart white sports costumes with accessories to match, and becoming white felt hats. Mrs. Price occupies the cabana belonging to Arthur Curtis James, the commodore of the New York Yacht Club. Mrs. William J. McKenna and her close friend, Mrs. Florence Van Fleet Linsley, of Aiken, S. C., have taken a house on the beach for several weeks. Mrs. McKenna has the cabana next to Mrs. Price's, and she is often seen on the boardwalk wearing a becoming yellow woolen swim suit topped by a coat of the same material. After a swim in the sea-green water, Mrs. McKenna one day donned a turquoise blue sports dress to wear to luncheon.

Blue was chosen by Mrs. Dan Conklin for luncheon that same day, shimmering satin being employed to fashion the costume, Sally's informant confided. Mrs. Conklin was nursing a sprained ankle which she received in a tennis game, but she has entirely recovered now. Dan and his wife the motor trip back home yesterday. Mrs. Lindsey Hopkins Jr. accompanied Mrs. Conklin to luncheon, attired in a pink sports dress, which was exceedingly becoming to her blond type. A German band paraded on the beach playing familiar tunes, and would you believe it, all the youngsters danced on the beach by the edge of the surf! Sally understands that Miami is like that—one is willing to dance anywhere, even on a sandy beach. The lulling strains from another orchestra provided the music during luncheon, and the dancing glided over the highly polished floor to such airs as "Blue Moon" and "Isle of Capri," with the ever-enchanting Atlantic forming the colorful backdrop.

MAYBE you have heard, but maybe you haven't, that a debutante charmer who made her debut three years ago, has a lovely engagement ring. Well, she has. It was given her quite recently by a dark and handsome suitor, who has already hung out his lawyer's shingle.

They are seen together frequently at lots of parties, and their friends are chatting over the tea cups about their marriage in the spring. Sally does not dare to give their names. But look around carefully, and you can soon spot the lovers.

A HOST of friends are rejoicing over the recovery of Judy Beers, who suffered such painful and serious injuries in a recent accident in Washington, D. C. The accident occurred while Judy was enjoying coasting down a deep snowbank with a group of classmates at Gunston Hall. The latest news from Judy's mother, who has been with her since the accident, is that Judy is convalescing and is able to take short daily strolls. Escorted with her mother, the Brighton hotel, where she was removed from the hospital, Judy is spending many hours reading the countless number of cheerful letters and cards received from her Atlanta friends, who number her as one of the Gate City's most popular and attractive belles.

News from her schoolmates at Gunston, who visit her daily, tell of the courageous spirit and patience shown by Judy during her trying hours of pain. Although the youthful patient was unable to attend the "at home" held at Gunston Hall last Saturday, she was honored by being selected as one of a small group to assist in this formal affair, as was Miss Frances Orr, another popular Atlanta belle enrolled at this prominent school in the national capital.

Wesleyan Alumnae. Group 4 of the Atlanta Wesleyan Alumnae will meet Saturday afternoon, March 3, at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. James Davis on Memorial drive, near St. ne Mountain. The paper for the month, "Theatrical Dynasties," will be given by Mrs. Milton Davis. This will be the last of a series of studies on the American theater.

Members are urged to attend this meeting. Cars are asked to meet at corner of Ponce de Leon and Briarcliff before 2:40 o'clock in order to get directions as to route.

Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C., To Give Benefit March 5

A benefit bridge to raise the quota of Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., for completing the shrine to the memory of Robert E. Lee will be held at the chapter house, 826 Juniper street, N. E., on Tuesday, March 5, at 2 o'clock.

The historic estate in Westmoreland county, Virginia, where the south's supreme hero was born and where dwelt his forebears from the early part of the eighteenth century, was acquired about seven years ago by the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation through a movement initiated by the United Daughters of the Confederacy and aided by gifts from the four corners of America. The plan is to complete this fund this year, as plans are being made for a pilgrimage to Stratford in October for the opening of the building.

Mrs. V. A. Rankin, chairman of this fund for Atlanta chapter, urges all members and friends of the chapter to have some part in raising Atlanta chapter's quota by attending this benefit bridge or sending contribution to Mrs. V. A. Rankin, 502 North Highland avenue, N. E., or to the treasurer of the chapter, Mrs. T. J. Ripley, 158 Peachtree circle. A committee composed of the following members of the chapter will assist Mrs. Rankin: Mesdames Frank Davenport, Marshall Holsenbeck, Helen Jones, refreshment; Mesdames John B. Wilson, C. B. Cauthen, J. O. Pountstone, Forrest Kibler, J. S. Bateman, B. F. Holtzendorfer, W. M. Jenkins, A. R. Colcord, tables; Mesdames S. P. Booth, James R. Thornton, G. H. Faust, Slaughter Linthicum, Paul Fleming, Henry Baker, J. L. Dennis, McWhorter Milner, prizes; Mesdames T. J. Ripley, John E. Hancock and W. E. Beckham will have finances and reservations.

Mrs. Lawrence McCord, president of the Atlanta chapter, extends an invitation to all friends to attend this benefit. Tables are $1 each.

Mrs. Thomas Speaks. Eleanor Raoul, director of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, announces that Mrs. J. D. Thomas will speak on "Keeping Up With the Legislature" at the monthly meeting of the staff of the Atlanta league, on Friday, March 1, at 10:30 o'clock at league headquarters. Mrs. Thomas followed the activities of the legislature very closely, and will be able to give many interesting highlights on the work of this assembly.

Miss Wyley Weds Dr. Meyers At Druid Hills Church Service

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Marvin Wyley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ennis DeLain Wyley, to Dr. Martin Theodore Meyers, was solemnized Wednesday evening at the Druid Hills Methodist church before an assemblage of relatives and friends. Rev. John Brandon Peters, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony which was preceded by the choir singing "The Church" rendered by Miss Ethel Byer, organist; "Prelude to Lohengrin" by Wagner; "Trauer" by Wagner; "The Evening Star" by Wagner; "Wedding Song" by Harriet Ware; "Romance" by Liszt; "Liebestraum" by Liszt. Prior to the ceremony Mrs. Reuben Burnside sang "Because" and Harry White sang "One Alone." The wedding party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march and during the service Miss Byer played softly on the organ.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with palms, foliage plants, Easter lilies and candelabra. The choir loft was banked with palms before which stood baskets of Easter lilies. Between the baskets were several branches of orange blossoms holding white gleaming tapers. Mounds of Easter lilies graced the chancel rail at intervals and bouquets of these lovely blooms marked the pews reserved for the families of the bride and groom.

The bridesmaids and groomsmen entered the church in pairs, the latter wearing attractive gowns of aqua blue tulle marked along modish lines with short trains. They were becoming smart hats of the off-the-face type, fashioned of tulle to match their gowns. Bouquets of yellow roses and delphinium tied with gold-colored satin ribbon completed their costumes. They wore slender gold bracelets which were gifts from the bride.

The bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Barrett, of Seneca, S. C.; Miss Maibelle Dickey, Mrs. Harry White, formerly Miss Giviner Giviner, and Mrs. Thomas as E. Lucy Jr., of Decatur. The groomsmen were Dr. Cecil Hogan, Dr. J. G. McDaniel, Dr. William Trimble, William Methvin, Lieutenant James Vinson Foley and Blair Foster.

Miss Eleanor Smith, of Cordele, Ga., attended the bride as maid of honor and she was an attractive figure wearing a gown of peach-colored tulle, fashioned along princess lines made with a short train. Her small, off-the-face hat was made of tulle to match her gown and she carried a bouquet like those carried by the bridesmaids.

The bride's exquisite blonde beauty was accentuated by her wedding gown of eggshell transparent velvet. Fastened along regal lines the gown extended into a long graceful train at the back. The becoming long sleeves hung full from the shoulders to the elbows, from where they were tight fitting to the wrists. The bridal veil of tulle was edged with lovely rose point lace and was confined to the bride's hair by a Juliet cap of rose point lace held on either side by tiny clusters of orange blossoms. The new jewelry worn by the bride was a handsome diamond brooch which belonged to her cousin. She carried an exquisite lace handkerchief which was carried by the bridegroom's grandmother when she was married.

The bride carried a bouquet of orchids and valley lilies. Dr. Meyers was attended by Robert Wyley, the bride's brother, as best man. Dr. Meyers and his bride left immediately after the ceremony for a motor trip to Miami, from where they will take an airplane for Nassau. Upon their return to Atlanta they will make their home in the St. George apartment on Peachtree street.

The bride wore a striking two-piece suit of sheer gray wool made with a three-quarter length coat and trimmed with a gray fox fur collar. Her small gray fabric hat was trimmed with a navy blue ornament, and she wore navy blue accessories.

They wore slender gold bracelets which were gifts from the bride.

The bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Barrett, of Seneca, S. C.; Miss Maibelle Dickey, Mrs. Harry White, formerly Miss Giviner Giviner, and Mrs. Thomas as E. Lucy Jr., of Decatur. The groomsmen were Dr. Cecil Hogan, Dr. J. G. McDaniel, Dr. William Trimble, William Methvin, Lieutenant James Vinson Foley and Blair Foster.

Miss Eleanor Smith, of Cordele, Ga., attended the bride as maid of honor and she was an attractive figure wearing a gown of peach-colored tulle, fashioned along princess lines made with a short train. Her small, off-the-face hat was made of tulle to match her gown and she carried a bouquet like those carried by the bridesmaids.

The bride's exquisite blonde beauty was accentuated by her wedding gown of eggshell transparent velvet. Fastened along regal lines the gown extended into a long graceful train at the back. The becoming long sleeves hung full from the shoulders to the elbows, from where they were tight fitting to the wrists. The bridal veil of tulle was edged with lovely rose point lace and was confined to the bride's hair by a Juliet cap of rose point lace held on either side by tiny clusters of orange blossoms. The new jewelry worn by the bride was a handsome diamond brooch which belonged to her cousin. She carried an exquisite lace handkerchief which was carried by the bridegroom's grandmother when she was married.

The bride carried a bouquet of orchids and valley lilies. Dr. Meyers was attended by Robert Wyley, the bride's brother, as best man. Dr. Meyers and his bride left immediately after the ceremony for a motor trip to Miami, from where they will take an airplane for Nassau. Upon their return to Atlanta they will make their home in the St. George apartment on Peachtree street.

The bride wore a striking two-piece suit of sheer gray wool made with a three-quarter length coat and trimmed with a gray fox fur collar. Her small gray fabric hat was trimmed with a navy blue ornament, and she wore navy blue accessories.

Dr. and Mrs. MARTIN T. MEYERS.

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Marvin Wyley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ennis DeLain Wyley, to Dr. Martin Theodore Meyers, was solemnized Wednesday evening at the Druid Hills Methodist church before an assemblage of relatives and friends. Rev. John Brandon Peters, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony which was preceded by the choir singing "The Church" rendered by Miss Ethel Byer, organist; "Prelude to Lohengrin" by Wagner; "Trauer" by Wagner; "The Evening Star" by Wagner; "Wedding Song" by Harriet Ware; "Romance" by Liszt; "Liebestraum" by Liszt. Prior to the ceremony Mrs. Reuben Burnside sang "Because" and Harry White sang "One Alone." The wedding party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march and during the service Miss Byer played softly on the organ.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with palms, foliage plants, Easter lilies and candelabra. The choir loft was banked with palms before which stood baskets of Easter lilies. Between the baskets were several branches of orange blossoms holding white gleaming tapers. Mounds of Easter lilies graced the chancel rail at intervals and bouquets of these lovely blooms marked the pews reserved for the families of the bride and groom.

The bridesmaids and groomsmen entered the church in pairs, the latter wearing attractive gowns of aqua blue tulle marked along modish lines with short trains. They were becoming smart hats of the off-the-face type, fashioned of tulle to match their gowns. Bouquets of yellow roses and delphinium tied with gold-colored satin ribbon completed their costumes. They wore slender gold bracelets which were gifts from the bride.

The bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Barrett, of Seneca, S. C.; Miss Maibelle Dickey, Mrs. Harry White, formerly Miss Giviner Giviner, and Mrs. Thomas as E. Lucy Jr., of Decatur. The groomsmen were Dr. Cecil Hogan, Dr. J. G. McDaniel, Dr. William Trimble, William Methvin, Lieutenant James Vinson Foley and Blair Foster.

Japanese Exhibit At High Museum

During the month of March there will be a Japanese exhibit at the High Museum that will be of special interest to the teachers and children in elementary schools. The central figure in the exhibit will be "Miss Nagoya," a beautiful Japanese doll who came to Atlanta several years ago as a stately gift from the city of Nagoya, Japan, to the children of Georgia.

"Miss Nagoya" was made by the same firm that supplies dolls for the children in the imperial family of Japan. She is dressed in the very finest of silks, and has brought with her all the personal belongings that an aristocratic Japanese takes with her when she leaves her home for that of her husband. There is a tea set, a serving table, a brazier with all the necessary articles and utensils for brewing and serving ceremonial tea. There are chests, a dressing table, and a writing box, all of exquisitely decorated black lacquer. On every article appears the crest of the city of Nagoya.

Saturday afternoon, March 2, from 3 to 5 o'clock, will be the special time reserved for children in the primary and junior departments of Methodist Sunday schools to visit "Miss Nagoya." Announcements of other dates to be reserved for Girl Scouts, Girl Reserves and Junior Red Cross will be made later in the month. On Saturday the children are invited to bring parents and teachers.

Home Expert At Hapeville. Mrs. Nancy Lee O'Neal, home-making expert from Rich's, Inc., will entertain at a meeting of the Hapeville Woman's Club to be held on Friday afternoon, March 1, at 3 o'clock, at the city auditorium.

Mrs. O'Neal will give a lecture on laundry technique, assisted by Miss Daisy Harris, culinary artist from General Foods, who will demonstrate and serve frozen dairies. Mrs. Roger Williams, president of the club, extends an invitation to all members of the club and their friends. The public is invited.

Miss Bowman Feted At Party Series. Among the informal parties planned in compliment to Miss Martha Lee Bowman, admired debutante daughter of Commander Mark Cooper Bowman, U. S. N., and Mrs. Bowman, is the bridge-tee to be given on Monday, March 4, by Miss Isabelle Cooper at her Westminister drive residence.

Mrs. Cooper will be co-hostesses on Friday at a tea, honoring Miss Bowman and Miss Anne Boyd Croxton. The entertainment will be given at the Allen avenue residence of Mrs. Griffith and will assemble a number of the younger set.

Mrs. Mark Cooper Bowman, Mrs. Houston Johnston, Mrs. Hines Roberts and Miss Margaret Bowman will preside at the tea and coffee tables.

Count of arms, of many sizes, colors and symbols, will be shown at Rhodes Memorial hall Sunday afternoon, when the officers of the James Edward Ogilthorpe chapter, D. A. C., keep their annual meeting. The state historian, in honor of Mrs. Joseph Stark Calfee, of St. Louis, Mo., national president; Mrs. William E. Stine, of Chattanooga, Tenn., vice president of the south section, and Mrs. James A. Wood, state regent of Georgia.

The officers of the James Edward Ogilthorpe chapter are Mrs. S. M. Page Rees, regent; Mrs. John M. Slaton, vice regent; Mrs. Felix E. DeGolian, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. E. Stine, recording secretary; Mrs. John W. Rice, treasurer; Miss Annie Laurie Hill, registrar; Mrs. Bun Wyley, parliamentarian; Mrs. J. B. Bateman, chaplain; Miss Byrd Blankenship, historian; Mrs. Ellison Cook, of West Point, historian of the coats of arms exhibition and Miss Byrd Blankenship, assistant.

Several hundred coats of arms borrowed for the occasion will be displayed in addition to the collection owned by the state. The building of the state's collection is one of the activities of Mrs. James A. Wood's administration and is under the particular guidance of Howard McCall Sr., state chairman of heraldry.

Miss Clara Martin sails on March 12 from New Orleans on a cruise to Guatemala.

Miss Ida Thomas leaves next week for Miami, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Kenneth Keyes.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Pollard, of Huntsville, Ala., are spending several days with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Alexander, in the Pershing Point apartments. Mrs. Pollard is the former Miss Alex Alexander.

Misses Sara Hill and Eloise Moon will leave Friday for New Orleans, where they will be the Mardi Gras guests of Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Duren.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben T. Smith have opened their cottage at Sea Island Beach and have as their guests their sister, Miss Judy King, and Miss Betty Hay.

Miss Jean Lucas will leave Saturday for New Orleans, where she will attend Mardi Gras as the guest of Mrs. Walter B. Gillilan.

Frank Gay, son of Mrs. Ewell Gay, is ill with pneumonia at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. William D. Ellis Jr., on Muscogee avenue.

Mrs. James E. Hays, of Montezuma, has returned home after having been the guest of Mrs. R. K. Rambo, and Mrs. T. Guy Woolford.

Miss Frances Woolford is in Miami, where she will spend a month.

Mrs. W. S. Duncan, Mrs. W. P. Thomas, Miss Erin Hayes have returned home, after spending two months in Florida.

Mrs. Russell Peter Hartle, of Washington, D. C., is visiting Captain Frank Smith, U. S. A., and Mrs. Smith, at Fort McPherson.

Interesting Speakers Conclude Habersham Club's Flower School

Two interesting subjects will be discussed at the Habersham Garden Club's School of Judging and Arranging today at the Biltmore hotel. This is the second and last day of the school, which will feature two of the most outstanding speakers of the country. This morning at 10:30 o'clock John Taylor Arms, the greatest living American flower designer, will give his famous lecture, "How to Make Flower Arrangements," considering the subject from the basic element in all arrangements and design. He will illustrate with sketches the fundamental principles in making arrangements and will conclude with criticisms of the arrangements of the model flower show held in connection with the school.

Beginning at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, Mrs. Wheeler H. Peckham, of New York, will conclude the lecture series with "Judging Arrangements," teaching the proper points to consider in the comparison in order to correctly choose the prize winners, as well as to teach the members how to criticize their own so that better exhibits will result. This evening at 8 o'clock an examination in the form of a questionnaire will be held. This will be optional.

Following Mrs. Peckham's lecture yesterday afternoon on "The Flower Show and How to Judge It," the Habersham Garden Club entertained at an elaborate tea honoring those who attended the school. The tea was given at the Habersham road home of Mrs. Frank Carter, and the guests were given the opportunity of meeting the

Miss Ramspeck To Represent Camp Fire Girls in Washington

Miss Dorothy Ramspeck, daughter of Congressman Robert Ramspeck and Mrs. Ramspeck, has been chosen to represent the Atlanta Camp Fire Girls at the reception to be given at the Mayflower hotel in Washington, D. C., on Saturday afternoon, March 2, when delegates from many of the national camps will be present to celebrate the twenty-third birthday of the Camp Fire Girls' organization.

A national Camp Fire Girls citizenship project will be held at the Mayflower hotel, where Miss Katherine Lenroot, director of the children's bureau of the department of labor, will present a discussion-questionnaire to the delegates. This discussion-questionnaire is an addition to the citizenship activities in which Camp Fire Girls are already engaged throughout the country. The girls' answers to this questionnaire will be presented to Mrs. Roosevelt in June.

The presentation of the challenge to Camp Fire Girls will be made by Miss Lenroot at the reception, and will be followed by a luncheon at the Mayflower hotel. The luncheon will be from 2:15 to 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Lida Foote Tarr, national president of Camp Fire Girls, will open the program with a brief address to the delegates. Mrs. Tarr is the daughter of the late Mr. Tarr, a prominent Georgia politician and will introduce Miss Lenroot, who

Oscar Unger To Play Here

Among events planned for the week-end will be the presentation of Oscar Unger, South Carolina's brilliant young pianist, in a program at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium at 3 o'clock on Sunday under the auspices of the music division of the club.

The playing of Mr. Unger is attracting wide interest in music circles. As a boy he studied with Mme. Riviere, King, Jan Chapiusso, and Howard Wells, of Chicago, and has been heard to advantage in various cities in South Carolina, where he appeared before the important music club.

On Sunday Mr. Unger will play Fantasia in C Minor, Mozart; Etudes Symphoniques, Schumann; Etudes Op. 10, Nos. 3 and 25, Liszt; Chopin; Tarentella, and La Campanella, Liszt, and Staccato Etude in G Major, Rubinstein. At the close of the program the Thursday Morning Music Club, Mrs. Mary Douglas, president, will hold an informal reception for Mr. Unger at the home of Mrs. B. B. Fuchs, 905 Myrtle street, N. E., to which friends and those attending the concert are cordially invited. There is no charge for the concert.

Girls' High P-T. A. Plans Benefit Bridge

Girls' High School P-T. A. will give a benefit party Friday afternoon in Rich's tea room. Mrs. H. R. Albion, president of the association, with Mrs. B. B. Fuchs and other members of the executive board, will be hostesses.

Tickets are 35 cents each, or $1.40 per table of four. Guests are asked to bring their own cards if they play bridge. Mrs. L. Lichten, chairman of table prizes, has secured many lovely prizes, and there will be table prizes. Refreshments will be served.

Members and friends of Girls' High P-T. A. are invited to attend this party, which is the only money-making project of the P-T. A. for the year, and the proceeds are used for welfare work.

The Eastern
The next tournament to be held in the east is known as "The Eastern Championships." It was started in 1929 as more or less of a local contest for bridge competitors and has grown in size and reputation until, now, players from all parts of the country try for titles. It has become an annual fixture and is scheduled, this year, to begin March 11.

This event is always held in New York and draws a splendid field for the open pair championship, the winner of which receives the Goldman cup. The large number of competitors in this event makes it a long and arduous session, and the elimination necessary to reach the final round of play.

An interesting event is the newspaper team-four contest for the Culbertson cup. In no other tournament does the press get an opportunity to demonstrate its bridge ability. Any player employed by a newspaper, periodical or magazine may enter as a member of a bridge foursome.

Rad Bids

When a vulnerable opponent has made an obviously bad bid, there is no compulsion upon his opponents to assist him out of his difficulty. Often the best procedure is to pass and let him suffer the consequences.

In today's hand the South player outsmarted himself into a loss of 1,000 points.

Being friendly includes much more than a pleasant greeting, though this is the first invitation to people to accept it. It includes an interest in what others are doing and a willingness to listen to what they have to say without appearing bored, or voicing criticism, an effort to do and say kind things that make people feel the warmth of our interest. It includes courtesy in the little matters that are not in themselves important except as they indicate our selfishness and consideration of others. Then when we have established friendly relations we must still remember these things and remember that our friends love us and we contribute to their comfort and happiness. Oh, not material contributions but spiritual ones! We enjoy one friend because she is witty and gives us a laugh, another because she is mentally stimulating and makes us think, yet another because she has similar tastes to our own.

It is very hard for a sensitive person to be friendly because she is always nursing to grief at some body for mistreating her or ignoring her. It is hard for a selfish person to be friendly because she has no one else in life, that is to further her own ends and she is too selfish to care for the needs of others. It is so charming that people are willing to put up with her selfishness for the pleasant entertainment she puts out, she can't make friends.

There are some types who can appear friendly but who fall down in all other respects. They are the insincere person and the indiscreet talker. We are always a bit shy of the friend whose love we doubt. We are afraid to give our confidence to a person who may spill our secrets and if we cannot confide in a friend, half the pleasure of companionship is destroyed. It doesn't take long for insincerity to make itself known and if there is one thing that is despised in a friend it is insincerity. We like to feel that our friends can be depended upon to tell us the truth and not to say what we think we would like to have them say, regardless of what we really feel. We don't even want them to pretend to care more for us than they actually do.

The indiscreet talker is not necessarily an insincere or a dishonest person but she has a weakness for gossip that is like a weed that grows and spreads. She just can't resist telling all she knows. She wouldn't deliberately hurt her friend, but she would put her in a bad light, but if she has a piece of news that is interesting she can't hold it. She has formed the habit of entertaining her companions with gossip and when anyone touches her, out it comes.

Now, young lady, think hard and see where your weakness lies and after you have discovered it, set to and conquer it.

HOW I KEEP MY FIGURE

MYRNA LOY.

I have never been on a diet in my life. I have never found it necessary, as my figure always stays the same. Nothing that I eat seems to make me fat. I eat everything I want to eat, including sweets and deserts, but I never eat a very large meal. If I eat very much I feel stuffy.

Dancing is one of my favorite pastimes, and walking. I do neither of them with the thought of keeping my figure, but because I enjoy them. I live in the hills, and I go for long walks in the morning before I leave for the studio, and do the same thing practically every night when I get home. I also ride horseback quite a bit.

These things, in my opinion, help to keep a person generally fit.

I always try to get at least eight hours of sleep, and think that this is very necessary for any person's well-being.

Fruits and vegetables are an important part of my menus, just because they are the things that I like. I do not eat a great deal of meat.

SPARTA SCHOOL LOSSES DORMITORY IN FIRE

SPARTA, Ga., Feb. 27.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the boys' dormitory of the Sparta Agricultural and Industrial Institute for Colored Youth here Tuesday morning. The building was known as the Coleman Cottage, being named for one of the friends of the school in Hancock county. The fire had gained such headway when discovered that the occupants were unable to save any of the furniture, clothing and other belongings. The loss will be heavy as no insurance was carried on the building.

The child, in bed recuperating from a slight illness, was being visited by the four-year-old son of a neighbor. The little boy, who has often played with a toy gun, saw a revolver under the bed and pulled the trigger. The bullet struck the child in the chest, but it had spent its force and the child was only slightly wounded.

Man Loops, Soars With 'Bat Wings' After Leap From Plane in Florida

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 27.—(UP)—Man really flew under his own power here late today.

Clem Sohn, parachute jumper, donned home-made "bat wings" and webbing of his own invention and jumped from an airplane at an altitude of 12,000 feet to cavort about in the air.

Department of commerce and other aviation experts watched the 22-year-old daredevil's demonstration.

For the first 2,000 feet of his drop, Sohn kept his wings folded at his sides, testing his leg webbing as he hurtled downward. Then he spread out his arms and his rapid descent was checked.

He was content to glide for a while. Then, as he got the "feel" of his wings, he grew more ambitious, zooming to the right and then to the left, testing his leg webbing as he hurtled downward. Then he spread out his arms and his rapid descent was checked.

Crisp County Is Ordered To Levy Special Tax To Pay Power Debt

AMERICUS, Ga., Feb. 27.—Crisp county today was faced with the possibility of increases in their taxes to pay the debts of the county-owned hydroelectric plant near Cordele as a result of the granting of a mandamus against Crisp county by Federal Judge Bascom S. Deaver. The mandamus was issued on petition of S. L. Groves & Sons Company, contractors who are building the Crisp county dam, who previously had obtained a judgment against the county for a balance due them on the construction of the dam amounting to $124,762.54 and interest amounting to $18,922.32, a total of $143,684.86.

Crisp county is ordered, under Judge Deaver's ruling, issued in the American division of the federal district court, to levy a special tax on all property in the county sufficient to pay the contractors $10,000 in 1935 and the balance in equal installments from 1936 to 1942. Payments after the present year would be approximately $20,000 a year.

29 Persons Killed In Moscow Explosion

MOSCOW, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Twenty-nine persons were killed in an explosion and fire which destroyed the Kirov factory in Moscow early Sunday morning.

The loss of life in the disaster was disclosed by Vladimir Chibrikov, one of the victims who were cremated last night. The fire started shortly before midnight Saturday. All of Moscow's fire fighting units were called out to battle the flames, battled three hours before they brought the fire under control.

Doherty May Be Cited In Propaganda Deluge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Chairman Wheeler of the senate commerce committee, tonight asserted "organized public utility interests" of "flooding congress with misleading propaganda" in opposition to the bill which would abolish utility holding companies.

In addition, he asserted his committee probably would call Henry L. Doherty, who is secretary of the Public Utility Association, to account for what he termed an effort to "terrify stockholders" of that company into writing hundreds of letters to congress.

Meanwhile, the committee of public utility executives issued an analysis of the pending measure which predicted that its enactment would "seriously impair the national economy and gas service" and result in losses to investors running into the billions of dollars.

TIRED OF EDITING; NEW YORKERS DITCH GROWING MAGAZINE

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The unique spectacle of a successful and growing magazine quitting publication merely because the editors are "tired of editing" confronted New Yorkers today.

The magazine is "The American Spectator," founded two and a half years ago by Theodore Dreiser, James Branch Cabell, Ernest Boyd and Eugene O'Neill. A year ago Sherwood Anderson replaced Dreiser on the editorial board.

"When I started 'The American Spectator,'" the editors said, "we told you that our purpose was simply to entertain ourselves and you hoped, our readers, that we would do the job. . . we would, as we expressed it, 'retire to our estates.'"

"We are tired of the job," Nathan said today that it was possible he may start a new magazine of his own within a few months.

Babe Ruth Will Give Braves Needed Punch for a Winner

BOBBY DURHAM SIGNS PAPERS; CLUB NOW SET

Virtually All Now on Line; Moore Will Query "Doc" Prothro Again.

By Jimmy Jones.

Mr. Earl Mann, like Hannibal, Alexander the Great and other great conquerors, is about to become bored with conquest.

Yesterday Mr. Mann, on the cold-set day of the winter, produced a baseball item—the signed contract of Pitcher Bobby Durham, the young right-hander from the Piedmont league.

That makes, about 30 ball players that Mr. Mann has signed without a semblance of a holdout, all of which has been rather hard on some of the newspapermen who like to dig up Jeremiahs about players Tom, Dick and Harry being displeased with salary terms.

WHAT A "MANN!"

Mr. Mann, however, has whipped the players into line with so much efficiency and dispatch that he has just about all of those on the roster under contract and there are still 14 days intervening before the first of the Cracker battersmen show off to the sunny shores of Daytona Beach.

Bobby Durham, the pitcher who signed yesterday, incidentally is looked upon by Manager Eddie Moore as being about his best bet for a good rookie relief pitcher. Young Mr. Durham was the best relief pitcher in the Piedmont league last year and is said to perspire ice water, which means that he has the ideal temperament for a relief pitcher who must go in with nobody out and the losses fall.

And speaking of Manager Eddie Moore, he will dispatch today to Manager "Doc" Prothro, of the Little Rock Travelers, a final offer of Pitchers Frank Barnes and Bill Cobb.

NOT A WORD.

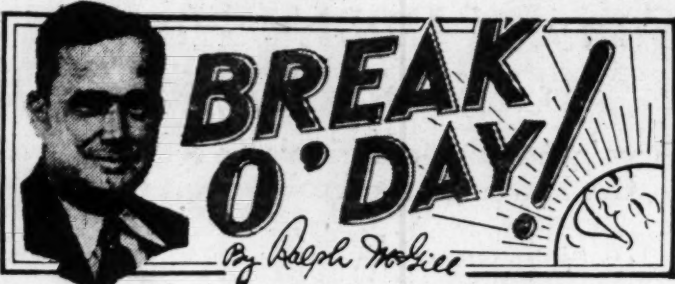

Mr. Moore has heard nothing from Mr. Prothro since he offered him the two pitchers, which, probably means that the Little Rock manager doesn't want them or that he has better pitchers than we think.

As for the Cracker "farm" situation, it is getting no better fast. The Southeastern league is still in status quo, as the lawyers say, where it probably will remain. And a ball club cannot farm out players to a league that is in status quo, the same happening to be virtually extinct in the Southeastern case, despite the noble efforts of Roy Williams and others to salvage it.

Central-Westminster Head Card Tonight

Several good games are in prospect tonight with the Central-Westminster game heading the list. This game should be a thriller and the outcome will have a lot to do with the championship. At present Westminster is tied with North Avenue for first place, followed by Central and Gordon street. A win for Central will put them back in the running and give them a chance to end the season tied for first place since they play the other leader, North Avenue, next week. Another game of importance will be the Gordon Street-West End. The schedule is as follows:

6:30—Central vs. Westminster.
7:20—Gordon Street vs. Central (series).
8:10—Gordon St. vs. West End.
9:00—First vs. A. R. P.

He refuses to remain permanently interred. Walter Hagen, I mean. For years now, The Haig has been reverently and decently interred in the grave of the once-great. He was like that cartoon the boys love to draw of some athlete with drooped shoulders mounted on a horse riding off into a cloud which was labeled "Oblivion." After the manner, of course, of the original of "Lo, the Poor Indian."

But the fellow keeps putting off the shrouds and stepping up as a winner. This time he has won the Gasparilla open at Tampa, winning $700, a puny purse compared with some of his old ones but then purses generally are punier.

He was first, that's the important thing, winning his first title in two seasons of golf. He shot an even 280 which was even par for 72 holes. And that happens to be golf in any league.

He won from a fast field, too. Because in it were Ky Laffoon, the young Denver pro who along with "Jug" McSpaden, is the sensation of the winter tournaments. Atlantics recall him. He won the Metropolitan here last season.

The manner of The Haig's winning was spectacular. He needed two birdies as he finished the 16th. His drive to the 17th was 45 yards from the hole. He strode up there nonchalantly, the report said, and holed the putt.

On the 18th his second shot was in a bunker but he chipped out to within three feet of the cup and got his putt down for a birdie three.

He started in this tournament as usually he starts. He had a blistering 64. He put down a good second round, as is his wont, scoring a 71.

He has done that often in these past two seasons. But always there has followed two poor rounds as The Haig, always happy about life, eased up a bit. This time he was going good. He added a couple of 72's to those first two rounds.

Ky Laffoon was coming fast behind him, needing three birdies on the last four holes to beat out Hagen. He missed the chance and The Haig was in.

Billy Burke, McSpaden, Jimmy Hines, Denny Shute and other stars of the winter, were in there. But The Haig was first at the finish. Which is the place to be first.

The Haig always has lived as he pleased, having a good time, violating most of the rules of training and success. But here he is, nonchalant and very much alive, winning a tournament. He'll be at Augusta for the National and if the backers of the Atlanta Metropolitan are wise they'll be very persuasive with The Haig. He'd make the show here.

THE DIZ SPEAKS HIS PIECE.

As an old and fond admirer of the great man, George Herman Babe Ruth, the statement by Dizzy Dean did not go so well. The Diz was frank to say he resented the Babe's entry into the National league. He resented it for Bill McKechnie. And he resented it generally. He just didn't like the idea.

It is rather bad for McKechnie. It is the only unattractive feature of the transfer of the Babe from the Yankees to the Braves. But at that, McKechnie would hardly have lasted but this one season. The Braves were dying. The Babe, or some similar attraction, was needed to keep them going.

It will be interesting business at that, watching the National league pitchers as they face the Babe. He is old, as baseball goes, being all of 42. But he can still hit that baseball. Such men are dangerous.

Diz Dean was just as frank in saying that if the Babe were up there in the pinch he, The Diz, would walk the

BABE TO PILOT BRAVES IN 1936, HE REVEALS

Definitely Decided Ruth To Have Full Charge Next Year.

By Alan Gould.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Babe Ruth paused long enough today—in the midst of preparations to assume the triple role of office under the banner of the Boston Braves—to confirm the general expectation that he will succeed Bill McKechnie as the full-fledged manager of the club by 1936, if not sooner.

For the time being the Babe will enjoy the novelty of combining his remaining resources as a player with the nominal jobs of assistant manager and second vice president of the Braves. He is perfectly satisfied with the new deal in his baseball affairs. He has pledged and will give full allegiance to McKechnie, who will have absolute authority in running the team this year, but there is also a positive understanding about the future.

"It's been definitely decided that I will take full charge of the Braves on the field next year," said Ruth. "My main ambition still is to manage a big league club and I am going to Boston with the understanding it will be fulfilled. I'll have three years, at least, with the Braves and I certainly hope things develop so that I can establish myself firmly in Boston for the rest of my baseball life."

"NO HANDICAP."

Ruth's statement clarified a feature of the arrangement touched upon only in general terms by Emil E. Juchs, president of the Braves, in announcing the deal. After giving McKechnie a rousing vote of confidence, for his loyalty as well as his ability, Juchs suggested that there would be "no handicap" to Ruth's taking complete charge of the club on the field, at the end of 1935.

The understanding is that McKechnie, who has piloted the team since 1929, the year he was elected to the post of general manager, leaving the path clear for Ruth to take full responsibility for all "master minding" on the diamond. This is logical. The Babe's playing days are definitely numbered at the age of 41 and after 21 years in the majors so that there would be no purpose in tying him up to a long-term agreement unless his potentialities as a leader also were to be exploited.

Ruth not only looms as the financial savior of the Braves, who came close to losing even their ball park during the recent crisis in the club's affairs, but he stands to do pretty well by his own bank account. Proceeds from the exhibition games along this spring should mean enough extra for the Braves to cover the Babe's flat salary for 1935, understood to be around $25,000. From there on the "velvet" should begin to accumulate, with Ruth getting his "cut" from the profits which likely will mean lifting the Braves "out of the red" by mid-season.

28 SPRING GAMES.

The club has scheduled 28 pre-season games, starting with the Reds at Tampa on March 9 and ending on April 15 with Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass. Nine games are listed with the Yankees and Nolen Richardson in St. Petersburg, Fla., and the famous waterfront park there—training ground of the Braves—should be the site for the rest of them by the tourist trade. Two contests also are scheduled with the rival Boston Red Sox in Florida, in addition to a concluding series of three games in Boston April 12, 13 and 14.

It is difficult to gauge Ruth's drawing powers for the pennant season. They will depend on how regularly he wins and what success he has at the outset. It may be no exaggeration to predict the Braves will double their box office appeal for the early weeks of the campaign with the Babe still ranking as one of the greatest drawing cards in any sport.

The Braves start the season at home, against the New York Giants, and the fans will be eager to see what Ruth can do against Carl Hubbell and the rest of Bill Terry's pitching "big four." His first appearance at the Polo Grounds, as a National leaguer, will be on April 25. It will be the first week in May before the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals and the celebrated Dean brothers enter the "Wigwam" at Boston but it may produce some fireworks.

DIZZY BLASTS BABE. Dizzy Dean, spokesman for the celebrated pitching brass, already has sounded the only jarring note in the otherwise universal National league welcome to the former home run monarch. Dizzy's blunt "resentment" voiced last night at Memphis en route to the Cardinals' training camp in Florida, took the form of sympathy for McKechnie, criticism of the American league for letting the Babe go and a prediction that National league players would put Ruth "on the pan" throughout the coming season.

Ruth was incredulous when he read Dean's remarks today and insisted he did not believe Dizzy could have said anything like that. A peaceful soul, the Babe harbors no ill will toward anyone but it has always been risky to arouse his temper. The Cubs stirred his ire in the 1932 World Series by their "razzing," which he testified to that.

"I can't see what reason Dizzy would have to put the blast on me," Ruth said. "I don't know him very well but when I had a visit with them during the last World Series he and his brother seemed like regular fellows. Maybe I'm wrong."

Ruth leaves for Boston tomorrow at 1 p. m. to do some formal signing and receive the first woman there at a home-town idol since he left the Red Sox after the 1919 season. He plans to depart on Sunday, at 12:35 p. m. from New York, for St. Petersburg.

Appling and Mauldin Off To Join Chicago

By Jimmy Jones.

Atlanta's twin gifts to the Chicago White Sox infield, namely, Messrs. Luke Appling, the shortstop, and Marshall Mauldin, the third baseman, departed yesterday morning by automobile for Chicago, where they will join Manager Jimmy Dykes' squad for the training trip to Pasadena, Cal.

Dykes is counting heavily on the two Atlanta boys to mould his 1935 infield. The White Sox are trying to build up a young infield, and with Dykes himself and Appling, who has been a star with the club for two seasons, as a nucleus, may eventually have one of the best in the American league.

With Zeke Bonura, the hard-swatted young man from New Orleans at first and plenty of punch in the outfield and pitching constitute the Sox's main problem, Appling thinks.

Young Mauldin, a product of the Atlanta sandlots, is conceded a good chance at third base, although he has some first-rate competition in Manager Dykes and Marty Hopkins from St. Paul. The youngster, who went up from the Evangeline league late last summer, appeared in quite a few games and showed considerable punch at the plate.

Dykes, one of the master third basemen of all time, will concentrate on polishing up young Mauldin's fielding. Dykes is said to like Mauldin as a hitter. He came through with a couple of home runs for the Sox last year.

LIKED BY FANS.

As for Appling, that young man is already firmly established in the hearts of the Chicago fans. He had a great year in 1933, after an erratic 1932 season, and finished up with the best average of any shortstop in the American league, a .323 with the stick. His fielding also was sensational. He started late last year, but wound up above the .300 mark.

Luke, who has been hunting and playing golf all winter, looks to another good season this year. The Cracker got $22,000 for him after he played half of the 1930 season with the club.

Appling thinks that Joe Cronin's Red Sox, given a first baseman, will be a real pennant threat this year. He looks for Cronin to give the club a lot of punch at the plate. If Lefty Grove comes through after his "off year" he is sure the rich Mr. Xawkey's outfit will be up in there.

Appling and Mauldin were among the first of the Atlanta winter colony of players to get away. Bob Smith, the pitcher, has left to join the Boston Braves, recently reinforced by Mr. Ruth, in training at St. Petersburg, and Nolen Richardson, the shortstop, has gone to join the Newark club.

FRED SINGTON.

Freddie Sington, who will get a shot in the Washington Senators' outfield this spring, is working out daily at Grant field, getting in shape to report at balmy Biloxi, Miss., next week.

Cecil Travis, the Fayetteville boy who plays a swell third base for the Senators last year, will join him.

"Bubber" Yarter, the former shortstop for the Inman Park Cardinals, probably will play with Galveston in the Texas league this year, along with Bob McQuinn, the young outfielder from Mercer University, both of whom are considered real prospects by Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, who own them. Hugh Casey, young pitcher, is on his way to Catalina Island with the Cubs.

Others players, including those who are trading minor league clubs, will be breaking away in a few days, telling mama good-bye and going out to seek their fortunes in the great national game.

Truly baseball is almost among us, what with the daily bulletins from the Florida big league camps beginning to trickle in on the news service wires.

Dahlonega Quintet Ends Season Tonight

DAHLONEGA, Ga., Feb. 27.—The North Georgia College will close its basketball season here Thursday night at 8 o'clock playing Piedmont College. The intense rivalry which exists between the two institutions always draws a capacity crowd and produces a furious game. North Georgia won the recent game on the Piedmont court and on the basis of season record probably has a slight advantage in this encounter.

BAM IS MOSES COME TO LEAD CLUB TO LIGHT

Players Jubilant Over Deal; Babe Faces Big Chance.

By Edward J. Neil.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Boston's Braves, waking up to the full realization that it wasn't all a dream and they actually had Babe Ruth, went soaring happily today along the road to all the things they believe the Bambino means to them.

To Wilkesburg Will McKechnie, whose managerial assistant the Babe will be as well as player and vice president, the home run monarch of the Yankees means the punch the Braves have lacked for years, close ball games won instead lost, the possibility even of figuring in the 1935 National league pennant award.

To the jubilant ball players, all of whom worship the "B" follow with the awe friend and foe alike can't hide, he's a baseball Moses, come to lead the New Englanders to any goal he wants to set for them.

GREAT CHANCE.

"He's facing the greatest chance of his career—and I know how great his career has been," said McKechnie today as he steered the athletes toward Waterfront park, where the Babe will train now instead of Miller Huggins' field, practice home of the Yankees, a few blocks away.

"If the Babe wants to come here wholeheartedly, be an organization man, help himself and everybody else, there are no limits to his opportunities. He's always been Boston's particular idol. He has a chance to be king now for the rest of his life."

Talking to McKechnie, there's no question of the relationship between Babe and the Braves. They want his mighty bat for the immediate future, the power plant that has terrorized the American league for almost half a century. They want him to lead them to the pennant.

Can A Home-Town Boy Make Good In Atlanta?

Can a home-town boy make good working for himself in his own home town, or must he hire out to some foreign corporation which has driven out independent competition, and be sent far afield in their employ?

The burning question of the day is whether Independent business can survive and whether individual effort can be crowned with the success that once was its reward. There is an answer to this problem, and it rests in YOUR HANDS! You can easily see to it that your friends, who are in business for themselves, survive the competition of mighty Corporate Interests and remain as your protection against the monopolistic combines which would otherwise soon have the field to themselves. Your friends, old-time companions, relatives and neighbors are well represented among the Independent Merchants. Trade with them—you get equal quality and value for your dollar—and better, more considerate service! Take your dollars to Home-Town Merchants and keep those dollars at home!

LEFTY BRYAN UPSETS BELL M'DIARMID LOSES

Bryan Grant, Gilbert Hall Advance With Straight Set Victories.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 27.—(P)—With Berkeley Bell, No. 1 seeded player from New York, and John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Texas, ranked No. 4, unexpectedly falling by the wayside play in the Bermuda tennis championships today reached the quarter-final round.

Bell fell before the steady playing of Robert (Lefty) Bryan, of Chattanooga, Tenn., 7-9, 6-2, 6-3, while R. D. Murray, of Montreal, eliminated McDiarmid in straight sets, 6-1, 6-4.

The left-handed Bryan, unseeded, forced the play from the start. For the most part he stayed on the back line and drove Bell from corner to corner until the New Yorker erred. When Bryan did go to the net, his fine placements often left Bell flustered.

GRANT AND HALL.

The remainder of the quarter-final bracket was filled by Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, the diminutive Atlantan, and J. Giff Hall, of South Craven. N. J. Grant eliminated Eugene McCauliff, of Yonkers, N. Y., in straight sets, 4-4, 6-3, while Hall had an easy time with J. W. Kirkham, of New York, winning, 6-0, 6-1.

In contrast, play in the women's quarter-final bracket was more of a battle. Sylvia Henrotin, France's No. 2 ranking player; Jane Sharp, of Pasadena, Cal.; Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., and Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, filling the quarter-final bracket.

Henrotin gave a fine exhibition of tennis to take the first set.

from Florence LeBoutillier, of New York, 6-2, but then let up and let her opponent take the second, 4-6. She came back, however, winning the final sets, 6-0.

JANE SHARP WINS.

Mrs. W. M. Freisenbruch scored for Miss Sharp to 8-6 in the first set, but the California girl stepped up the pace and won the second handily at 6-3. Mrs. Andrus took three sets to beat Mrs. H. C. Brunie, of New York, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3.

Ryn de la Cruz, of Katherine Winthrop, of Boston, in two, 6-2, 6-1.

Other results:

Men's Doubles—Bell and Hall defeated T. and D. Price, New York.

New York, beat B. Even and Reid, Bermuda, 6-4, 6-0; McCauliff and Grant eliminated H. C. Smith and McDonald, Bermuda, 6-1, 6-4, and McDiarmid and Bryan defeated W. and E. Freisenbruck, Bermuda, 6-3, 6-1.

Women's Doubles—Henrotin and Andrus won by default; Winthrop and LeBoutillier defeated Mrs. W. M. Boocock and Mrs. Edwards, Bermuda, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.
